U.S. to Ask NATO Talks on Weapons Use

Ike's Fitness Seen Boon to Conference

Presence May Help For Unity

2 Leaders Hail Decision to Attend

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's decision to attend the NATO summit conference at Paris gave a new lift today to official hope for restoring allied confidence in American leadership.

Secretary of State Dulles and other authorities are counting heavily on Eisenhower's personality and prestige to infuse a fresh sense of unity and cooperation into the North Atlantic Alliance.

Has Final Decision

Furthermore, only the President has the power of final decision on U. S. policy. To the extent that issues are pressed to conclusion and agreements called for at the meeting, his presence in Paris should mean American readiness to make on the spot decisions.

The meeting was called to find new ways to strengthen the alliance in the face of Soviet advances in military and scientific fields.

Dulles told a news conference yesterday the absence of one leader from the NATO meeting would not make a vital difference. That was before the White House announced that Eisenhower would fly to Paris Friday.

The fact is, however, that the summit conference has been built around Eisenhower. One of the principal purposes of Paul-Henri Spaak, NATO secretary general, in urging the meeting was to get the President together with the leaders of the 14 other coalition members.

View of Adlai

Adlai E. Stevenson, who served briefly as Democratic adviser to Dulles on NATO policy, told friends recently that holding the Paris meeting without Eisenhower would be like "holding a wedding without the bride."

In London, British Prime Minister Macmillan hailed Eisenhower's decision to attend the NATO meeting as "very good news." And in Rome a high official of the Italian Foreign Ministry said "the meeting would have lost most of its importance had the President been unable to attend." But in spite of all this, the Paris session may not be an easy one

St. John, All of State's DAs Called to Albany

District Attorney Howard C. St. John will be among district attorneys who will attend an anti-crime conference, called by Gov. Harriman, at Albany next Wednesday.

The governor called on all district attorneys in the state to discuss strengthening law enforcement.

Harriman's telegram to St. John read:

"I am asking you and other district attorneys in the state to meet with me at my office in Albany on Wednesday, Dec. 18 at 1:30 p. m. to discuss the problem presented by organized crime and the ways in which law enforcement can be strengthened. I am also asking Attorney General Lefkowitz and my counsel Judge Gutman to be present at the meeting. I hope you will be able to come. Please let me know."

St. John's reply to the governor was that he would be pleased to attend the session.

Blow at Criticism

An Associated Press report from Albany on the conference said:

The move was regarded as an attempt to counter Republican criticism that he has not dealt firmly enough with recent gangland activities.

The Democratic governor said he also was asking Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz, a Republican, to attend. Harriman's counsel, Daniel Gutman, will sit in as well.

The governor summoned the district attorneys by sending a telegram saying "I hope you will be able to come."

To Buck Big Crime

The telegram, made public by the governor's office, said Harriman wished to meet with the district attorneys "to discuss the problems presented by organized crime and the ways in which law enforcement can be strengthened."

The Legislature's Republican leaders have called on Harriman to authorize Lefkowitz to launch a statewide attack on Gangsterism. So far the governor has not done so.

Probe Continues

Meanwhile, law enforcement authorities continued their probe of 60 men police said attended Joseph Barbara's gangland convention at Apalachin last month.

An investigator moved in New York City to revoke their pistol permits.

Only 100 Attend Chambers Parley On Consolidation

Approximately 100 persons attended a meeting at the Chambers School last evening to discuss the proposition of consolidation through the creation of a Greater Kingston Consolidated School District. It had been anticipated there would be greater interest in the matter and the spirit of "apathy" which appears to prevail was disappointing to those who seek to bring the matter to a decision.

Robert Coughlin from the New York State Education Department Bureau of Rural Administraion Services, attended the meeting and spoke. He described the meeting as a "good meeting with lots of questions" and stated the panel of experts who answered questions had done a "good job." However he too expressed disappointment that the session had not been better attended.

Not Enough Interest

There has been some expectation that following a series of information meeting held in various districts which would be included in the consolidation area, a vote could be scheduled for this month.

At a recent meeting of the Kingston Board of Education it was reported the vote would not be held "until next spring."

Asked in regard to the possibility of having a vote on the matter of creation of the Greater Kingston School District, Coughlin said he did not think the petitions presented to the Central Will End Esopus Services

The Public Service Commission today authorized the New York Central Railroad to discontinue all services other than the handling of carload freight at the Esopus station.

Carload freight will be handled on local team tracks but under jurisdiction of the company's agent at Kingston, the PSC reported.

To Continue Truck

Pick-up and delivery service for less-than-carload freight is now provided in the Esopus area by a truck operating from Kingston, and that procedure will be continued.

For the past four years, an agent has been on duty at the Esopus station between 5:30 and 10:30 a. m. on Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays to handle the sale of passenger tickets. This arrangement was ordered as a result of protests received in a 1953 proceeding on the railroad's prior application for permission to close the station.

Transfer for Agent

A spokesman for the railroad here said Oscar Beach, the agent who has served the Esopus station for about the past two years, will be assigned to another point.

In a report to the Commission, Examiner Thomas J. Brady states that no opposition witnesses appeared at the hearing held in connection with the company's current petition. Testimony showed, he says, that station operating expenses for 1956 approximated $2,700 as compared with ticket sales of about $1,230.

Brady said that on the basis of hearing testimony, "it appears that public convenience and necessity no longer requires the services of an agent" at the Esopus station. He noted that most of the tickets sold there in recent years have been for travel from Poughkeepsie and that they may be obtained at either Kingston or Poughkeepsie without undue inconvenience to the public.

Snow, Cold On Way; May Go to Zero

ALBANY (AP)—Strong, chill winds blew into New York State today from the west and the Weather Bureau predicted the mercury would plunge to near zero in some areas.

Winds along the Great Lakes ranged up to 40 miles an hour in mid-morning. Temperatures ranged around 20 in many upstate spots.

Blizzard for Some

Near-blizzard conditions were forecast for some sections, along with the cold.

Temperatures were expected to range from near zero to the teens by tonight.

The near-blizzard weather was forecast for areas southeast of lakes Ontario and Erie and into the Adirondacks. Other areas were told to expect snow squalls and flurries.

The Weather Bureau, which had predicted four inches of snow for eastern New York last night, offered no encouragement because it had not materialized. "The weather is just starting," the bureau reported.

Rain fell instead of snow last

Work on 9W-32 Spur to Bridge Will Be Continued

Work on construction of the 9W-32 spur west of the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge has been progressing satisfactorily and will continue through the winter, except at such times when severe weather conditions interfere, Edward J. Burns, administrative officer of the New York State Bridge Authority said today.

Under study on the east side of the span, he said, is proposed installation of mercury vapor lights at the point where the eastern approach road intersects Route 9G.

The authority recently authorized installation of the lights, and

Change in Practice of Hiring Lawyers Would Cost Taxpayers $5,000, DA Says

Replacement of a current practice by his office to hire counsel for cases in county justices courts would require two additional assistant district attorneys, resulting in an increase to the taxpayers of $5,000 per year, District Attorney Howard C. St. John told the Board of Supervisors in a letter today.

The district attorney cited "election campaign" criticism of a practice by his office in hiring counsel to represent him in justices courts. He noted the practice "has been one which has been carried on in this county for a period of over 35 years."

During the last election campaign a report of the Department of Audit and Control was quoted as criticizing the practice.

St. John said his interpretation of Section 703 of the County Law, differed from that of the Department of Audit and Control, which cited that section as its statutory authority.

He suggested the board obtain a ruling from the county attorney on the interpretation of that section of the law, "and I am sure you will act in accordance with the best interests of the citizens of Ulster County."

Letter to Board

St. John's letter to the supervisors follows:

"During the past election campaign, much was attempted to be made of a practice of the district attorney's office in hiring counsel to represent this office in justices' courts throughout the county. This practice has been carried on in this county for a period of over 35 years. To insure justice for all, I have always felt that complainants were entitled to adequate and able representation in the lower courts of this county; and consequently, have followed the practice which has been prevelent of assigning attorneys to represent the people.

Testimony on Taverns Serving Youth Begins

A grand jury inquiry into allegations that four Ulster County taverns served alcoholic beverages to a 17-year-old Kingston youth last Friday night opened this morning at the local courthouse.

The youth, Craig Spence, a Kingston High School junior, was expected to appear before the Grand Jury and was in the courthouse shortly before 10 a. m.

With him was the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, pastor of the Old Dutch Church, who accompanied the youth Friday night to test widespread rumors that minors (persons under 18) could order alcoholic beverages at practically any tavern in Ulster County and would be served.

Oudemool Invited

It was reported that the Rev. Mr. Oudemool had also been invited by District Attorney Howard C. St. John to appear before the Grand Jury.

Also with young Spence this morning was his mother, Mrs. Raymond Countryman of 180 Henry Street, who told The Freeman that she would accompany her son into the grand jury room if that body granted her permission to do so.

What other persons have been subpoenaed or invited to appear before the grand jury in its probe of alleged sale of alcoholic beverages to minors was not disclosed by the district attorney.

Nolan Meets Clergyman

Chief Counsel Benjamin F. Nolan of the State Commission on Investigations, which has been conducting a preliminary probe of local police corruption and its ramifications for the past six weeks, questioned the Rev. Mr. Oudemool Tuesday about the allegations made by the minister in a sermon from his pulpit last Sunday.

He told his congregation that he had accompanied a 17-year-old member of the church to four bars in the county and that alcoholic beverages had been served to the youth in each of them.

The experiment was in preparation for the taping of a panel discussion the following day—Saturday — by Radio Station WSKN. The tape recording was of a panel discussion on the sale of liquor to minors, the use of identification cards as proof of age, etc.

Members of Forum

Participating in the forum, one of a series entitled "Forsenic," were the Rev. Mr. Oudemool, Harry E. Howard, a member of the county's Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, and Robert Teetsel, proprietor of The Barn and chairman of the identification card committee of the Ulster County Hotel, Restaurant and Liquor Dealers Association.

On advice of Attorney Frank Compochario, counsel for the radio station, the broadcast scheduled for Sunday afternoon was canceled. It was feared that the contents of the recording might constitute grounds for a

BA Seeks Aid to Start Newburgh Span Work

Start of work on the proposed Newburgh-Beacon bridge could be delayed for some time unless the state finds means of providing money for the project, it was learned today.

In a move this week, the New York State Bridge Authority sought state aid for an advance in financing the span, noting that the authority has insufficient funds at this time to get the project under way.

A resolution adopted by the authority noted that it will require either state or federal assistance. The latter is unlikely at this time because the federal government does not allow assistance for toll projects.

Asking 14 Million

The authority seeks an advance of $14,000,000 to finance the substructure of the bridge which will cost an estimated $38,000,000.

Earlier this year $1,000,000 was advanced for purchase of rights-of-way, but John S. Stillman, bridge authority chairman, now holds that unless the authority gets the full $14,000,000 for the substructure this year any lesser sum would be meaningless and would delay start of construction for at least a year.

Tax Favored

In its recently adopted resolution seeking the money, the authority proposed that "If the state budgetary situation does not allow for a $14,00,000 advance this year without the imposition of a new tax, we favor the addition of such a tax."

The bridge, as now planned, would be part of an interstate route system, and because of this would be wider than any of the other Hudson River spans.

Federal aid is provided for highways mapped as part of the inter-state system, but it would take special legislation to get similar aid for a toll-operated bridge.

The bridge authority's resolution said that ordinarily the span would be financed by "immediate sale of our own bonds but because of the high cost of an interstate highway system bridge, the condition of the bond market resulting from high interest rates; and the burden of the $17,000,000 Kingston Bridge bonds, it is not feasible to finance the bridge at this time by ourselves."

Original plans called for start of work on the bridge in 1958, and completion in 1962.

The authority's resolution stressed the point that unless the full $144,000,000 is authorized, work could not be started "because a substructure contract could not be let in installments."

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Army, successful last night in launching a modified Redstone test vehicle, pushed on today with its program to put up a baby moon.

Top engineers of the Army ballistics missile agency from Redstone arsenal at Huntsville, Ala., were here and the Army launching area at the Air Force missile test center bristled with inter-related weapons of the Redstone family, waiting for firing.

The results of the election of directors of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce were announced at the regular meeting of the board of directors Tuesday night at which William J. O'Reilly, vice-president, presided for President Robert L. Sabin, who was out of town on business.

A resolution adopted supported the efforts of the Central Catskill Association to have Route 28 from Boiceville to the Delaware County line rebuilt on a safer alinement. Alex Embree Jr., chairman of the Chamber's Traffic & Transportation Committee, and Manager Albert Kurdt traveled to Margaretville recently to meet with the board of directors of the Central Catskill Association to discuss the need for improving the highway.

The Chamber directors also decided to appoint a convention and visitors committee. This will be done by President Sabin as soon as he returns.

Bianco Asks $100,000 for Damage Laid to Removal of Creek Gravel

As a result of damage done his property during the severe floods in August and October 1954, Joseph Bianco of Rosendale has brought action for negligence and trespass against John Arborio, Inc., one of the New York State Thruway contractors and Mrs. Sarah Ackerman of Rosendale, owner of a gravel pit.

Bianco, who operates a boarding house and summer resort along the Rondout Creek at Rosendale, alleges that Mrs. Ackerman contracted with Arborio for gravel fill from her property on the Rondout and that the removal of this fill, and the construction of a roadway to "the island" where the gravel was scooped up, caused the flood waters to be diverted over the Villa Bianco property and cause great damage.

Outlines Results

In the August flood four buildings and roadways to the Bianco premises were damaged and in the October 1955 flood the water jumped the normal channel of the creek and five buildings were damaged as well as foundations to his home. He alleges that Arborio in making a roadway to the gravel source in the creek "knocked down" trees, constructed a roadway and did other work which caused the creek to change its course and that the removal of 18,000 yards of gravel from the bed of the north channel of the creek contributed to his damage.

Bianco alleges that he has been damaged to the extent of $100,000 and seeks to recover that damage from the Arborio corporation and Mrs. Ackerman, owner of the "island" which divides the Rondout Creek into two channels. Plaintiff alleges that prior to the removal of the gravel by Arborio for fill on the Thruway, little water flowed through the north channel and that the severe damage done his property in the two 1955 floods was caused by the changes in the channel through removal of the gravel and the other changes made. He also alleges that the work during the summer of 1954 made the waters of the creek muddy and unsuited for bathing at the beach used by guests.

Arborio's Contention

Arborio alleges that for years gravel has been taken from the creek at that point and that nothing was done to contribute to the flood damage to the Bianco premises: In 1954 approximately 18,000 yards of gravel was taken from the creek by trucks which used the old ford-

May Spread To Other Two Pacts

Report Britain In Favor of Plan

LONDON (AP)—The United States will ask its fellow NATO members next week to approve a new plan for allied consultations on the use of nuclear weapons against aggressors.

Washington also wants to give NATO countries joint control with the United States over the triggering of nuclear missiles within their own borders. But although there would be consultations beforehand, no member nation would have the right to veto American or British use of nuclear weapons based elsewhere.

Are Key Proposals

Responsible sources say these are the key proposals contained in a U. S. memorandum now being circulated among NATO members. The purpose is to reduce the apprehensiveness of the continental NATO countries—especially France—that in war the United States or Britain might unilaterally launch a nuclear attack which would involve them.

The NATO chiefs of government, meeting in Paris Monday, will be asked to take action on the U. S. plan, said to be supported by Britain.

If the NATO governments agree on a process for rapid consultations, informed sources say, the pattern later may be extended to members of the five-nation Baghdad Pact and the eight-nation Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Plans Not Disclosed

Just how the allies might consult fast enough to make the plan workable was not disclosed. One suggestion was that ambassadors of the NATO countries in key capitals might be organized for discussions in emergencies.

The development of a means of swift and foolproof communication between NATO capitals seemed to be an essential requirement of the plan. Informants did not indicate how this would be assured but said the question is in the hands of military authorities.

The U. S. proposal outlines this plan for joint control of nuclear weapons at European bases:

The United States would deliver intermediate range missiles to continental NATO members that agree to accept them.

Would Get Missiles

Each of these NATO countries would be provided with the missiles and their firing mechanisms and would control the launching apparatus. U. S. units in Europe would retain control of nuclear warheads for the missiles.

If war broke out and the governments of the United States and the country agreed, the U. S. units would immediately deliver the warheads to the European country's missile crews, which already would be trained in using them. They could be fired immediately—but Americans would not pull the trigger.

Dunne Observes 50 Years as Fireman

Area firemen last night paid tribute to a volunteer member observing his 50th year in firemanic work.

Lucullus (Lou) E. Dunne, secretary of Wiltwyck Hose Company No. 1 was honored at a testimonial dinner held by the volunteer fire company at the Elks Club on Fair Street.

Praised for Devotion

City officials, members of the clergy and fire officials praised Dunne for his devotion as a volunteer fireman.

Attorney William A. Kelly, president of the volunteer company who served as toastmaster, introduced the Rev. J. Dean Dykstra, company chaplain; the Rev. James V. Keating, assistant pastor of St. Joseph's Church; Fire Chief James M. Brett, former Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy, president of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association; Fire Commissioner James Locke and City Assessor Maxwell Taylor.

Mayor Frederick H. Stang, who was unable to attend, sent a message congratulating Dunne on "his outstanding service."

Chiefs Brett and Murphy spoke of their long-standing association with Dunne in firemanic matters and commended

Goes 8,000 Miles To Get Feel of Car

BUFFALO (AP) — "The salesman told me to take her out for a trial spin but he didn't say how far to go."

That was the report of George G. Morgan Jr., who told police yesterday he drove 8,000 miles through seven states in an auto that wasn't his.

Morgan, 31, is from Lagoa, Tex.

He was arrested here after an auto dealer in nearby Lancaster reported that a stranger tried to sell him a new tire and wheel.

Morgan said he picked up the 1956 model car from a Victoria, Tex., dealer a week ago.

He said he drove through Texas, Louisiana, Kentucky, Florida, Ohio, and Pennsylvania on a meandering tour that ended here.

He said he hadn't had one police inquiry. 'I just observed all the speed and traffic laws."

He was held on a vagrancy charge pending further investigation.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Having voted in nearly everybody else's television poll as this year draws to a close, I now vote in my own poll. For that pretentious adjective "best," however, let's substitute a more modest "favorite":

Single show of the year—"The Green Pastures" on "Hall of Fame" (NBC-TV).

Regular live drama program—"Studio One" (CBS-TV).

Regular filmed drama program—You name it; I can't.

Passes on Quiz

New musical variety show—The Patrice Munsel show (ABC-TV).

Situation comedy—I continue to smile after all these years with "Father Knows Best" (NBC-TV).

Western — I still ride with "Wyatt Earp" (ABC-TV).

Quiz program—I pass.

Daily coverage of the news — Chet Huntley and David Brinkley (NBC-TV).

Weekly news review — "Outlook" (NBC-TV).

Program of consistently intelligent interest, whatever its subject happens to be—"See It Now" (CBS-TV).

Interview program—Mike Wallace (ABC-TV).

Delving in the various arts — "Omnibus" (NBC-TV).

Examination of the world of science—"Conquest" (CBS-TV).

Random travel and amateur adventure—"Bold Journey" (ABC-TV).

Weekly examination of contemporary history — "20th Century" (CBS-TV).

Ambitious regular monthly entertainment effort, with even its failure noble ones—"Show of The Month" (CBS-TV).

Biweekly wandering around with cameras all over the place—"Wide Wide World" (NBC-TV).

Fairy tale — "The Millionaire" (CBS-TV).

Superspecial blueplate —"Annie Get Your Gun" (NBC-TV).

Comedian (before he took a vacation)—Jackie Gleason.

Comedian (after he took a vacation—Jack Paar.

Female entertainment personality—Polly Bergen.

Male entertainment personality—Perry Como.

All these, and many more, come to us because that frequently belabored group known as commercial sponsors is willing to invest money in television. To my mind the commercials of at least three have been especially interesting and in good taste.

They are the sponsors of "Hall of Fame," "See It Now" and the special "Annie Get Your Gun." All have persuaded me to buy or use their products.

Sudden Stop Blamed

A railroad spokesman had said that snow and ice was believed to have caused the accident.

Yale Tests Show

MastodonRoamed Around Upstate 11,410 Years Ago

ALBANY (AP) — You won't see him today of course, but if you were around Upstate New York 11,410 years ago you could have made the acquaintance of the enormous mastodon.

The State Education Department reported yesterday that the actual time that the mastodon roamed the northeastern part of the continent had been established for the first time.

Huge Animal

The mastodon, a huge animal that looked like a wooly elephant and sported great tusks, lived in this setting:

Glacial ice had retreated from northeastern North America, the Finger Lakes region of New York State was topped with a dense forest of spruce and fir, and man, in his primitive stage then, had not ventured up into this area.

The Education Department said radiocarbon analysis of a piece of spruce wood found with the bones of a mastodon in Cayuga County in August 1955 had pinned down the date of the beast's existence as close as science can.

It showed the remains to be 11,410 years old. The margin of error in such analysis is 110 years either way.

The tests were made by Yale University's geochronometric laboratory, which reported its findings to the state museum and science service.

The big bones, including a 10-foot-long tusk, were unearthed by Myles L. Colgan while using a bulldozer to drain a small depression on his land near Ledyard.

Scientists who visited the site recovered more parts of the same animal from a bed of peat and clay.

From the bone fragments, a botanist collected pieces of spruce wood, which provided the key to the skeleton's age.

The mastodon skeletons are exhibited at the state museum in Albany against a 20 by 40-foot mural of the Catskills at the close of the ice age.

Game Land Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The migratory bird conservation commission has approved acquisition of land for two migratory waterfowl refuges in Upstate New York.

Secretary of the Interior Fred A. Seaton announced yesterday the commission had approved acquisition of 10,157 acres for the new Oak Orchard swamp refuge, about 40 miles from Rochester and adjacent to a 2,400-acre state refuge, and 172 acres for the Montezuma refuge in Cayuga County.

GROWTH AND OPPORTUNITIES

The expanding opportunities for local commerce and industry brought about by the explosive population growth in Ulster County since 1950 is emphasized in the report of the New York State Department of Commerce. Commissioner Edward T. Dickinson's report is based on the 1957 special censuses taken in the City of Kingston and nine townships and a village in Ulster County.

The extent of the suburban growth here in the seven-year period from 1950 to 1957 reached a high of 79.7 per cent in the Town of Woodstock. Census figures show an increase in population from 2,271 to 4,082 in this township.

The Town of Hurley had the second largest increase in population with 72.4 per cent. In 1950 the population was 1,980 and in 1957 there were 3,414 residents.

According to the special census figures, the Town of Ulster had a 64 per cent gain in population from 4,411 to 7,189.

Other special census figures showed the following gains: Town of Lloyd 21.4 per cent from 4,503 to 5,466; Town of Marbletown 37.8 per cent from 2,364 to 3,258; Town of New Paltz 39.3 per cent from 3,749 to 5,222; Town of Plattekill 31.6 per cent from 2,215, to 2,916; Town of Rosendale 25.2 per cent from 2,950 to 3,692; Town of Saugerties 31.7 per cent from 9,232 to 12,157; Village of Ellenville 19 per cent from 4,225 to 5,027.

In the City of Kingston the population growth in the seven-year period was 5.7 per cent from 28,817 to 30,470.

The report further states that in the rapidly growing Mid-Hudson Area, population increases of more than 25 per cent since 1950 were reported in 17 of the 18 towns which had special enumerations. The absolute gain in each of these towns exceeded that of the preceding decade, and in 16 of them, was larger than the rise in the 20-year period 1930-1950. Half of these 18 towns are in Ulster County.

Prior to World War 2, suburban communities were almost exclusively residential in character and grew up along public transportation routes which provided ready access to the industrial and commercial establishments of the central city. Recently, however, more widespread ownership of private automobiles has made possible residential development in areas without public transportation facilities at sites accessible to workers primarily by the private automobile.

THE IDEA'S FREE

There is now on the market an electronic watchdog that keeps tabs on a variety of gadgets for detecting such things as fire, burglary, excessive pressures in tanks, and so forth. When the alert is sounded, the electronic device dials a predetermined number and delivers a recorded message about the danger.

The device seems to be intended mainly for industrial plants or business establishments, but it occurs to us that something like this might save lives and millions of dollars if it could be adapted for home use. How often does one read, for example, about a family that narrowly escaped—or didn't quite escape—when a home burst into flames at night? A warning device, actuated by unusual heat, might prevent many such tragedies.

Warning devices might also be linked to detection of escaping gas and other hazards. We're not going into the electronic business, but it seems to us that this might be a useful field for inventive minds. The idea's free for the taking.

Ours is really a country of opportunity. Where else could an ordinary fellow and a bank go into partnership as owners of an automobile?

AMERICANS IN OPERA

The other day, when I was reading about Caruso, I wondered how many Americans sing in opera today and how important they are. I was surprised to find that more than 58 per cent of all the artists in the Metropolitan Opera Company are either American-born or naturalized American citizens and that among the native Americans are some of the leading singers.

The total cast of artists is 106; the Americans come to 62.

It is possible to think of the temperamental Maria Meneghini Callas as an Italian or a Greek, but the place was New York City. I was surprised to note that all but one of the mezzo-sopranos and contraltos are American. But I knew that such popular tenors as Jan Peerce and Richard Tucker were of this country.

Among the conductors, there is an American, Thomas Schippers, whom I first saw conduct a student orchestra at Tanglewood. And now Leonard Bernstein, also a Tanglewood alumnus, is conductor of the New York Philharmonic, a most notable achievement.

Musicians like to pride themselves that they do not go in for chauvinism, that theirs is an international language which knows no boundaries. But it used to be that it was mighty tough for an American to get anywhere in this field in his own country. Some Americans even changed their names to sound like Europeans. When Edward Johnson, a Canadian, started in Europe, he gave himself an Italian name, which he soon enough discarded. Emma Eames was the first great singer who was an American. Gatti-Casazza, who was often accused of being so Italian that he never learned to speak English, nevertheless sponsored the careers of Rosa Ponselle, Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moore.

I am also told that whereas in the past it used to be that American opera imported its singers from abroad, even this trend has been reversed and Americans are singing all over Europe most brilliantly and with great success.

Maybe we lack engineers but not sopranos and baritones and for what we do not lack, let us take full credit. The opportunities for the American artists, however, are not too great. There are two opera houses in New York, a short season at the City Center and a fuller season at the Metropolitan. San Francisco has a season of opera and there are some travelling companies.

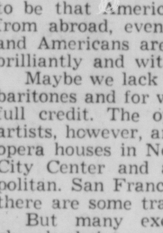

But many excellent singers are found in church choirs, on television or radio and even in night clubs which are the last refuge of the artist. There are an increasing number of choral groups which produce a wide variety of programs of artistic significance. Only occasionally is singing in the live theatre worth while, the style continuing to be raucous, as it must be when it fights the shrillness of brazen brass that seeks to justify high prices by an excess of noise.

But even the live stage may return to the finer music to which it was accustomed when "The Merry Widow" was the rage. Such an opera as "La Perichole," which is really a musical comedy in the pleasanter style of the 19th Century, may set the standard of another day when the younger generation may have money enough to pay for Broadway tickets and when they will demand sweet music even if not long-hair.

The opera has one advantage over the Broadway theatre: if there is any dirt, it is sung in a foreign language and nobody understands the words anyhow. I recently went to a very popular play on Broadway, a hit this year, and discovered that whereas the author had a fairly amusing plot, he did not trust his humor to carry the audience. He introduced a gimmick. He had a small boy innocently say what small boys call dirty words. And every time he said one of those, the audience roared.

They though it so funny on the stage, but if their own children, say nine years old, walked into their living rooms, in front of guests, and used such language, even parents who practised progressive education would whale the tar out of them or as they used to do in my day, wash their mouths with yellow soap. Children may safely be taken to such operas as they might enjoy without fear that they will refer to their mothers by an awful word that begins with a b.

Small Varicose Veins On Legs Are Often Better Left Alone

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

Considerable caution must be used in many kinds of treatment, including that discussed in today's first question.

Q—Can anything be done to get rid of unsightly veins on the upper part of the legs and thighs? I dread wearing a bathing suit because of these.—Mrs. M. P.

A—This question probably refers to what is known as the "spider-burst" type of small varicose veins. These lie near the surface of the skin and are more unsightly than dangerous. Treatment of them must be approached with caution, if at all. Some can be treated by injection of a sclerosing solution locally. Some can be handled by the use of an electrolysis needle. Probably in the majority of instances, however, they should be left alone in spite of such concern as that shown by Mrs. P.

Q—About a year ago my son had injections of cortisone given for iritis. Since that time he has had trouble with his hair falling out and is wondering if the cortisone could be the cause. Is this possible?—T. K.

A—It is possible. Cortisone is an active preparation, of course, and can produce several symptoms which go under the collective name of Cushing's syndrome. It is for this reason, particularly, that when cortisone is given for the treatment of any condition the patient must be watched with the greatest of care.

Q—Will you please say something about the effects of smoking and alcohol on a polio patient. —Anxious.

A—During the acute stage of illness almost certainly alcohol and smoking would be undesirable. After recovery, so far as I know, neither smoking nor alcohol have an specific action on the effects of polio. They would have just about the same amount of possible harmful effects as they would on a person who had not had polio.

Q—What do you think might be wrong when a person turns red and breaks out with what looks like hives from being in the cold air? A sudden change from warm to cold causes this. Also, when I eat or drink anything cold my lips and inside of the mouth swell.—Mrs. H. B.

A—In all probability this is an example of the rather unusual physical allergy, or hypersensitiveness to cold. A few people do react in the manner described by Mrs. B. and must be cautious about contacts with anything cold. It might be possible to bring some measure of relief by gradually increasing exposure to cold, thus lessening the sensitivity.

Q—I have had lingering trouble from bursitis and now the question of treating by X-rays has come up. Would you say something about whether this is safe, since I have heard a good deal about the dangers of too much X-ray.—P. M. E.

A—Assuming that the X-ray treatments will be given by someone thoroughly qualified, the amount of risk should be considered slight indeed. This form of treatment sometimes works where other measures have failed.

Washington News

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Detailed Washington analyses of Communist Boss Nikita Khrushchev's latest surveys of the Soviet economy reveal a tremendous rate of Russian industrial growth.

One extreme interpretation of the figures is that the Russians are not only winning the battle of production—they may already have won it.

This conclusion is based on the fact that the Russian economy is now strong enough for mass production of weapons equal to the West's.

Russia is now completely self-sufficient in arms production. In event of another World War, the Russians would not be dependent on lend-lea: aid such as they got in World War II.

The battle of production in World War II will of course be different from what it was in World War II. In a nuclear war, whichever side takes the initiative can destroy the other side's war production potential in a short time.

FOR A LIMITED war of the Korean or Indo-China variety, industrial production capacity is not the deciding factor.

It is forces in being at the start of either an all-out war or a brush-fire war that will count the most. And here the Russians can challenge the United States in everything from tanks to guided missiles, though they have a smaller economy.

U. S. gross national product of goods and services will be over 425 billion dollars this year. On a comparable basis, Russian gross national product is only 40 per cent of that, or about 170 billion dollars.

In simpler terms, the per capita consumption of the average Russian is less than a third of the average American's.

By American standards, the Russian "worker's paradise" is poverty-stricken. The Soviet government treats civilian consumption like a necessary evil, to which it makes grudging concessions and great promises from time to time, to keep the people contented.

IT IS WHERE the Russians channel their efforts that gives them the advantage in arms production. This is best illustrated by comparative steel capacities and rates of growth.

Russian steel productnion in 1956 was 48 million tons. For the U. S. it was more than double that, 104 million tons.

But a great deal of U. S. steel production goes into automobiles, washing machines, refrigerators, housing and building construction. Very little Russian steel goes into such things. Russia produces only 100,000 automobiles a year, in comparison to the nearly 6,000,000 produced in the U. S. Most of the Russian steel production is plowed back into heavy industry. In capital goods —factories, power plants and heavy machinery—Russian steel consumption is close to American. In machine tools, Russia last year produced more units than the U. S., with a 25 per cent greater value.

It is the Russian steel expansion program, however, which is causing American economists the most concern.

IN 1941, after the German invasion, Russian steel production was cut from 20 million down to 12 million tons. Today it is 51 million tons. The increase is over 2.4 million tons a year for 16 years.

If Russia maintains this same rate of steel expansion for the next 15 years, her capacity will be close to 90 million tons a year by 1972. Khrushchev's goal is to make it 100 to 120 million tons. This is greater than U. S. production today and more than double Russian production today.

Khrushchev's other goals for 1972 would put Russia ahead of U. S. production today in iron ore, coal, petroleum, electric power, cement, woolen fabrics and shoes.

Khrushchev also promises the Russians that he will give them equality with American production in meat, milk and butter by the early 1960's. He may not make that one, however, for the simple reason that cows can't calve that fast.

The important point in all this is the tremendous rate of growth in the Russian economy. The Russian claim is that they will be able to accomplish in 50 years what it has taken the United Sfates 180 years to do.

This has a wide appeal to underdeveloped countries like Egypt, India and Indonesia. The Russians lose no opportunity to drive this argument home.

Problems Facing NATO In Event of War Outlined

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower's decision to go to the conference of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization at Paris is of world-wide importance because the fifteen free nation whose representatives are assembled there will mobilize moral force as well as military force in the hope of preventing a third world war.

This is not the first meeting of the NATO council—there have been many meetings in the past. NATO's stock from time to time has risen and fallen in the eyes of the rest of the world. But there emerges now a clear picture of the necessity of strengthening the alliance. For while the United Nations is a debating society, NATO is an action group with collective power to operate militarily under Article 51 of the UN charter.

NATO Problem

Obviously, even though the United States is the most powerful member of the group, there isn't the slightest intention on the part of our government to act without the fullest understanding in advance with the other member governments—if there is time.

A practical situation, therefore, faces NATO today which has not been very widely discussed before. Who is going to pull the trigger to start the "massive retaliation" that must be ordered if the enemy attacks first? In Britain people are nervous because American bombers stationed there take routine flights with H-bombs in readiness for instant action. Supposing, the British say, some American plane drops a bomb on Britain by mistake? What about a possible collision in a fog? The presence of atomic bombs and perhaps missiles, too, very soon will raise the issue in other NATO countries. The Communists are already quite aware of their chance to bring discord among the free nations by questioning how the civilian governments will participate in any decision permitting overseas bases to be used for retaliatory purposes when attack comes. The influence of the Communists in various parliamentary bodies in Europe on the NATO side is well known.

Hypothetical Cases

Looking at the whole situation from a realistic point of view, it is important to determine what is going to be done in the following hypothetical cases:

1. The Communists may notify the NATO countries in Europe that they will not be attacked if they agree not to let the United States use overseas bases. Will some of the NATO members then agree to a sort of passive neutrality in the crisis?

2. If the United States is directly attacked and the other NATO countries are not attacked, will the European members of NATO agree to permit instant retaliation anyway from their bases by American bombers and missiles?

3. If the "first blow" is struck by the Communists and several big cities in America are destroyed simultaneously and our own bases in this country have been seriously crippled, then does the United States alone retaliate with what military strength it has left and, meanwhile, do the NATO countries debate the issue while the Soviet bombers are raining bombs on American cities?

Notes Reliance on Bases

It has been contended by American military men that the damage which the missiles and bombers of the United States can inflict from our overseas bases would be so extensive that the Soviets would not dare to risk an attack on America. But this presupposes a smooth-working retaliatory operation with the fullest co-operation instantly by the NATO countries. Can this be guaranteed?

The United States, by the NATO treaty—which was ratified in 1949 by an overwhelming vote of the Senate—established a precedent absolutely unparalleled in American history. For, despite the requirement of our Constitution that only Congress shall declare war, the President of the United States was given the authority by this treaty to start instantly a war against any country that attacks any member country of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, even if the United States is not directly attacked. There need be no debate in Congress—the action authorizing instant war in such circumstances has already been taken.

It is only fair to the American people that our Allies in NATO should take the same precautions and avoid a lengthy parliamentary debate when minutes count and retaliatory action cannot be delayed. Unless the Moscow government is convinced that the retaliation is to be promptly put into operation, there could be a decision by the Kremlin to make war believing that America and her Allies would be rendered helpless before any effective measures of retaliation can be initiated.

Soviet Russia should be put on notice that NATO might not wait for the "first blow" to arrive before authorizing interception of enemy bombers and missiles. Doesn't all this add up to the necessity of an agreement between the Soviet people and the people of the NATO countries to permit the kind of inspection, aerial and otherwise, which will assure both sides that the "first blow" must not be risked by either side?

These are some of the knotty but critical questions that the NATO meeting must resolve, entirely apart from a proclamation of peaceful purposes. For peoples everywhere must be alerted to the dangers of letting any clique or impulsive ruler in a totalitarian government, decide the fate of the world.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 — In his Christmas message of 1954, Pope Pius XII inveighed against abuses of individual persons, human beings by labor unions. He said, "Access to employment or places of labor is made to depend on registration in certain parties or in organizations which deal with the distribution of employment."

Phil Murray's outrage against American principles in dismissing Harry Bridges from the job of regional director of the CIO in 1948 because Bridges had given his political support to Henry Wallace, was a clear case in point. Bridges was, and is, president of the CIO Longshoremen's Union. He had been tried endlessly on "charges" of communism in the public courts and Murray had defended him passionately, even during a phase when Bridges was officially, legally adjudged to be a Communist. But now, Murray canned him from the post of CIO regional director for the west coast because Murray was for Truman.

Murray then deliberately selected as Bridges' successor a criminal with a multiple prison record named Tim Flynn and arbitrarily imposed this thug upon millions of American workers as the west coast satrap of the CIO.

Continuing, Pope Pius XII said in his 1954 Christmas message: "x x x the proper function of labor unions x x x is the protection of the interests of the salaried workers within modern society, which is becoming more and more anonymous and collectivist. . . . is not the essential purpose of unions . . . to protect the individual against collective irresponsibility of anonymous proprietors? x x x How, therefore, can it be considered normal that the protection of the personal rights of the workers be more and more in the hands of an anonymous group, working through x x x immense organizations which are, of their very nature, monopolies? The worker, thus wronged in the exercise of his personal rights, wil' surely find especially painful the oppression of his liberty and of his conscience, caught as he is, in the wheels of a gigantic social machine."

About 10 months before his Holiness wrote this comment I had interviewed in the Vatican a prelate who was advisor to the Pope on labor. I discovered, to my no great surprise, that this dignitary was ignorant of practical unionism in the United States. He expressed shock when I told him facts which have since been confirmed by the tedious repititions of the McClellan committee's stuck-whistle solo on the Teamsters' Union. I acquainted him with other flagrancies of the racket.

He asked me to write a survey so that he could present this version to His Holiness for enlightment.

When I published this interview, the monthly Jesuit magazine called "America" carried a dispatch from Rome which said "Official sources at The Vatican" had "stated categorically that no Holy See official had been authorized to treat with anyone concerning union problems or personalities in the United States."

"The same sources had no knowledge of the possible identity of the so-called 'official' mentioned in the Westbrook Pegler story and they disavowed any Holy See association with Pegler attacks on unions and union leaders."

This conveyed an impression, but without saying so, that my word had been repudiated by The Vatican.

In Rome again in 1955, I called on Michael Chinigo, the correspondent of International News who had arranged my interview. His assistant, Al Piccolo, a discharged American GI, had served as my guide and interpreter. Mr. Chinigo related a strange incident. He said an American priest, newly assigned as news reporter at the Vatican, had asked him how to go about getting a denial of the Pegler story. Chinigo said he replied that the American priest had come to the wrong man because he, Mike, had arranged the interview and knew that I wrote the truth about it.

I was unable to write my review for the Pope, but some Americans who read his message suspected that his criticism of the impersonal treatment of workers by unions was based on something I had written to him.

Just before I started this essay I spent an hour with a young American who served six years in the Army in the Pacific. He was hungry and destitute, sleeping in the Salvation Army for $1 a night and earning his meals as a hasher in low dumps. He had not had a day's work at his trade since August, but if he does not spend his days hanging around a union "hiring hall" he may go to the bottom of the list and lose a year more. This union has flagrantly sold "memberships" for from $300 to $500 and it notoriously discriminates against continental Americans in favor of British subjects and Latin American citizens. My friend thinks the Taft-Hartley Act guarantees him a right to full membership, but, after years on the probationary rolls, he is still a "permit man."

I told him of an American from California with a wife and two little girls who had holed them up in an abandoned omnibus in a junkyard and was sneaking a living washing cars at night in a non-union shop in winter. He was a painter, but, being here from California, he could not become a "citizen" of the New York union until a year had passed. He could slip someone in the hiring hall $10 every now and again for an odd job.

I could do nothing for either of them. And I told them it was useless to go to any district attorney, congressional committee or Labor Relations Board because the high unioneers are too strong.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

ANDROS TOWN, Bahamas (AP)—For years I've been saying that fishing isn't much of a sport because it's too easy.

Now, at the risk of enraging the nation's 20 million anglers, I think I've proved my point.

Sportsmen travel from all points of the compass to try their luck here at catching bonefish, one of the world's fightingest game fish. Their scientific name stands for "white fox," and they are also known as "the phantoms of the flats."

Little Chance for Fish

"Let's us see what we can do," suggested my wartime buddy and vacation companion, Don Whitehead, author of "The FBI Story."

"I don't think it's quite fair," I replied. "What chance has poor dumb fish got against a grown man with charm, character, two college degrees and a receding hairline?"

"Save the small talk," said Whitehead, who has fished since he was a tadpole, "and get in the boat."

We climbed into the small skiff and Rudy, our native guide, bumpety-bumped us over 15 miles of azure sea to a favorite creek further down this largest of the Bahamas Islands.

After hanging a chunk of crab on the hook, I remarked:

"I still feel like a criminal. What chance have they got?"

"Fish or cut bait," remarked Whitehead briskly.

Five-Minute Battle

Well, reluctantly, I made my first cast. Believe it or—zing!—there was a silvery surge in the water, and the reel groaned as a big bonefish hit the bait and raced with it 75 yards.

Five battling minutes later I reeled him in. My hands ached.

"Like I said," I told Whitehead, "the fish hasn't got a chance."

"Try again," he suggested. His mouth fell open as I made another cast—and immediately got another strike. Then he got a strike himself. For the next hour we reeled them in steadily.

Record Catch

Then we headed home—bumpety-bump-bump over the waves. At the pier we counted our fish and found we had 25 (not counting four we had tossed back), a record catch from a single skiff here in one day. We distributed them among the natives who find them choice eating.

"Let's go out again tomorrow," said Whitehead.

"Not me," I replied. "I feel ashamed. It's all been so unfair. I feel sorry for the poor fish."

Now I know millions of anglers who bet me a hundred dollars I couldn't go out and duplicate my feat the next day. But remember the duffer who stepped up to his first tee, belted a hole-in-one and threw away his clubs, saying, "This game is too easy?"

Well, nobody could ever prove he was wrong — so long as he didn't step up to the second tee. That's why I'm hanging up my fishing pole. The time to quit is when you've made your point.

Fishing is just too simple. I'm going back to croquet. That's a game of real skill.

Brill Sworn In As Thruway Chief

ALBANY (AP)—Clinton B. F. Brill was in office today as chairman of the State Thruway Authority and as Gov. Harriman's state construction overseer.

Brill, a New York City engineer, was sworn in yesterday at ceremonies in the executive chamber attended by Harriman and top-ranking state officials.

Harriman appointed Brill to the $19,500-a-year Thruway job last week and also designated him as a special assistant on construction—a new office. The Thruway chairmanship had been vacant since last January, when Republican Bertram Tallamy resigned to become federal highway administrator.

Harriman said he hoped Brill "would show us how to get along with a more economical form of construction." Brill replied that he would do his best to live up to expectations.

Students Pray For Jet Pilots

PLATTSBURGH (AP) — When jet bombers of the Strategic Air Command roar off Plattsburgh Air Force Base, the pilots carry with them the prayers of pupils at a Roman Catholic school here.

Each child has his own pilot and prays for him as the plane takes off.

One of the pupils, 12-year-old Michael Haley, wrote Maj. Richard W. Kane of the 529th Bomber Squadron:

"I have been praying for you. The children in our class pray for other pilots. . . . Whenever we hear a B47 warm up, we always say 'Hail Mary.' I thank you for keeping me safe and all others in Plattsburgh."

Kane, who has a son in the seventh grade, invited the class to visit the base. He said the pupils "helped strengthen the faith of SAC pilots and crews."

BOOK REVIEW

To further increase interest in the Kingston Library the following review by Mrs. G. Cramer Dodge is published.

Fingal, the "Fanner", so-called because of his curious habit of fanning the air in front of his face as if clearing away a cobweb or smoke—a throwback to the time when someone in the foundling home had pushed him off her lap and blown smoke in his face—was busy eluding after pulling off a recent kidnap job. He spent nearly all of the ransom money and he also was trying to make peace with his gang, who were furious with because he had not divided the loot. The gang knew they were under suspicion for the part which they had not taken in the crime—as yet unproven—of the murder of the child.

After this latest kidnaping, Fingal had undergone plastic surgery which gave him an engaging grin and so changed him that a member of his own gang failed to recognize him. Greatly encouraged by this he planned another kidnaping to provide funds to get him out of the country. His cold-blooded planning, the many crises which arise in the execution of them and his wickedly clever handling of them make up this intensely thrilling story.

Just about when Fingel was reconnoitering in the neighborhood of the handsome suburban home of Foss Benton, rising young architect, preparatory to clearing his way for the abduction of the Benton baby, 20-months old David, the Bentons were preparing to leave for a long evening at a progressive dinner party. Foss had just finished teaching his son to call him "Father" instead of "Daddy." David, an altogether delightful child, was happily trying out his new word when the loveliest of the "Good Children," 16-year-old Sally Gould arrived with two young friends to baby sit with David. Elaborate arrangements are made for Mrs. Benton to telephone Sally at 10:30 when her guests will have gone. Sally to retire in a room adjoining the nursery after calling up her mother.

Things didn't work out as planned. At 10 o'clock Dorothy good little housekeeper, was carrying coke bottles to the kitchen when she smelled gas. The four youngsters, Sally, Tom, Dorothy and Sally's new boy friend, 19-year-old Jeff Ramsay, son of irresponsible, twice-divorced parents of great wealth, and a thoroughly unspoiled boy make hasty plans to cope with the emergency. First they notify the gas company, then call Sally's mother to say that they were taking the baby and going to "Martha's" (a nearby respectable road house) since they had to get out of the gas-filled house. That message was taken by Sally's senile 98-year-old great aunt and came out, "They were bombed out and are going to "Mary's." Then a note was pasted on the front door, addressed to the Gas company and the police, telling where they were going, giving the license number of Jeff's Cadillac and asking the police to stand by to take incoming calls.

Soon after they left, Fingal arrives and silently inspects the place, discovers the note tears it off and pockets it, then follows the children to "Martha's "arriving just as they are being refused admittance because they were minors and "Martha's" had a bar. While debating the point, Davy pulls himself up by Fingal's trouser leg and proudly uses his new word, "Father." "Why didn't you tell me the baby's father was with you?" snapped the receptionist, and admitted them.

After that its a game of moves and counter moves. Over and over a vicious criminal thinks he has his objective in his grasp only to be foiled by little Davy or his innocent but increasingly wary guardians. The children become really alarmed when, by chance, they discover their note in Fingal's overcoat pocket.

From then on its a really dangerous situation. Fingal returns from a drugstore where he presumably telephoned Sally's mother, but did nothing of the kind and finds Sally and the baby gone. Jeff tries desperately to mislead him but fails. Fingal, turning ugly, knocks him out with the butt of his gun and starts out to follow Sally, who hasn't too good a lead carrying the heavy baby, the net seems to be closing.

In the meantime report of the missing Cadillac has been broadcast over the radio by the police. The Bentons and others of the progressive dinner party hear it and start out in a panicky search. It was old Mr. Fremont, whose own baby had been kidnaped fifty years ago, and never found, who pushed the search most intelligently, and who translated "Martha" out of old Miss Gould's "Mary."

The baby who caused all the excitement was most endearing and interesting. At an age when instinct was just as good as intelligence, little David matched his small vocabulary with persons and circumstances with amazing precision. His "Want bathroom" got immediate response; his name for the orchestra drummer was simply "Boom Boom." His ace remark to old Miss Gould, once a famous concert singer was a highly suitable "Hi, Doll." Who could do better than that?

Logan, past state vice president; Charles A. Ryan and Joseph S. Disch, past state vice presidents and past district deputies. (Freeman photo).

Do You Remember by Sophie Miller

Response is still coming in on Harry Rigby Jr.'s question "Where did the Kingston street get its name?"

Rigby in his letter writes: "P. Joseph White of 60 Deyo Street, tells me that the old Tietjen farm occupied a large area of land running from Flatbush Avenue to Albany Avenue, and that the farmhouse was located just about where the new Grand Union supermarket is located on Albany Avenue. When this farm was broken up into building lots, Tietjen named one of the new streets on his land after himself. White also remembers the white fence around the Donovan property on Washington Avenue that Mrs. Porter wrote of the other night. He adds that this was just about where the Washington Avenue trolley car line ended."

The letter further goes on with: "Mrs. Lester Elmendorf, of 173 TenBroeck Avenue, telephoned to say that Elmendorf Street was named after her late husband's grandfather, Conradt Elmendorf, whose farm covered a large area in that vicinity. The house where she now lives was the first built in that part of the Second Ward and was the original farmhouse. Much of the land thereabouts was planted to an apple orchard.

"Mr. Elmendorf's mother remembered, as a girl, that all "The Promised Land," the area roughly from Smith Avenue to Flatbush Avenue, on both sides of the present West Shore Railroad tracks, was an open meadow covered with bushes bearing the biggest and sweetest blackberries ever eaten. It was in this area that the circuses for many years pitched their tents. The elder Mrs. Elmendorf vividly remembers the fact that for several years the Indians attached to the circus pitched their tents across from their house and the neighborhood children were entranced at watching them prepare and eat their meals. Could these Indians have been in Buffalo Bill's or Pawnee Bill's Circus?" he asks.

Personally I remember when the circus played in town and my father took me there on an early trolley car to see them unload and the elephants help with the work. We also saw the long boards put up for the circus people to eat. They ate good. One could tell by the aroma of good coffee and bacon and other breakfast foods. No cold breakfasts for them. We were not the only ones there to watch. I remember seeing Henry Connelly, another pharmacist from downtown who brought his children. We all watched silently and I think I was somewhat sleepy but as I remember my father and Connelly used to shop talk and also watch what was going on.

Circus day, in my time, was something. It meant a street parade in the morning or early afternoon as they had to have it over before matinee. They paraded, down Broadway, to The Strand and up Hasbrouck Avenue and I think I have photos of the circus parade going past our door. It was a magnificent fairyland to us kids and I think to the grownups too. Who remembers?

Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming has an area of 3,472 square miles.

DENVER (AP) — Riley Cass, Denver engineer, and his wife drove to New England for their vacation. They especially wanted to see the Old North Church in Boston. But no one they asked seemed to know exactly where it was, including several policemen standing outside a district station. So the Casses drove on—and passed Old North Church a block from the police station.

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—One voter in Berwick township had his own ideas for his ballot in the fall elections here. He printed, under his own title of the "live and let live amendment," the question "Shall We Have a Stop Light at Cross Keys?" After that he drew two squares, one marked "yes" and the other "no" and placed an "X" in the "yes" square. Election officials threw out the ballot because it had been defaced.

Feeney Is Speaker On Law Course in Adult Education

Attorney Bernard Feeney Jr. will conduct a course on "Negotiable Instruments" at adult education class, "Law Everyone Should Know" today at 7 p. m. in Room V-110 of the high school vocational building.

The announcement was made by Attorney William D. Brinnier, director of the court in the Ulster County area, who said a course of "Local Government," originally planned, has been postponed until February 12.

The topic "Negotiable Instruments" will consist of discussions on the difference between ordinary contracts and negotiable instruments, the essentials and non-essentials of negotiable instruments, liability of parties to negotiable instruments and regulations regarding the use of checks.

Brinnier said that Feeney had considerable experience in this field of law, having delivered numerous lectures on the subject to various banking organizations.

This will be the Final Adult Education lecture in 1957 because of the holiday season. The next lecture will be held on January 8, at which time Attorney Seymour Werbalowsky will deliver the first part of a two-lecture series on the subject of "Contract Law."

Science Council Meets at Pawling

A meeting of the liaison personnel of Zone 2 of the Mid-Hudson Science Advisory Council was held at Pawling Central School last Friday evening.

Representatives from the following schools attended: Dover Plains, Pawling Central, Webatuck, Glenham School, Trinity Pawling, Wappingers Central and Beekman.

Professor Frederick W. Switzer acted as chairman of the meeting. The meeting was also addressed by Ambrose Kennedy, chairman of the liaison personnel; Richard Counihan who is in charge of lectures, demonstrations, etc.; Victor Salvatore of IBM who is in charge of equipment loans and gifts, and Mr. O'Neill who is publicity director of the council.

Counihan outlined the science club idea and spoke in the absence of Donald Raunick who was busy at another meeting. Victor Salvatore discussed ways and means of getting various types of equipment such as capacitors, transformers, transmitters, etc. He also discussed briefly the work shop idea that is being carried on very successfully in some schools.

O'Neill discussed the importance of various types of teaching aids to reduce the present work load on our science teachers and also allow extra time for the work shop program which can be very valuable as a teaching aid.

Teresa Bartell of the Webatuck Primary School gave a talk on facilities for students of the Pre-High School level, and consideration will be given by the council to extend their activities to the elementary schools.

Harry C. Becker, secretary-treasurer of the council was also present.

Why We Say--

ARABIC ORIGIN: Before the time when magazines were condensed and "re-condensed," the original meaning of this word was more correct. It comes from the Arabic "makhzan" which was a storehouse for grain. At first magazine was applied to books because they were storehouses of knowledge and then to the paper-covered publications we have now.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Tight money may not have departed yet but there are clearer signs today it is at least packing its bags.

The Federal Reserve Board has pumped a little money into the commercial banking system —not much, but apparently a little more than the Christmas shopping season would seem to require. This concrete action follows up its earlier signalling of a change of heart by cutting its own interest charges to the banks.

3.66 High Point

The U. S. Treasury has been able to borrow at less than 3 per cent. With the exception of two weeks in May this is the only time this year the cost hasn't been above that figure, the high point being 3.66 per cent on October 14.

Yields on outstanding Treasury bonds have been dropping, too.

And the yield for investors on a top-rated utility debt offering has slipped below 4 per cent for the first time in more than a year.

Demand on the banks for business loans has been easing, while at this time last year it was increasing.

Talk grows that the banks themselves will have to back down from the high charges they have been making for these loans. This may not come until next month, a period when demand for loans is seasonally low, since business firms and individuals alike are more prone then to be paying off their debts than to be taking on new ones.

Loan Demand Cited

It was the ever mounting demand for loans from all sides—governments, corporations, consumers—that made money tight in the first place. The Federal Reserve was set on letting it stay tight as a means of fighting the inflation then under way.

Today's dip in industrial activity and expansion plans and the leveling off of consumer demand seems to have halted this climb. If business dips further the process may be reversed and tight money ease itself out of the picture, with or without much help from the Federal Reserve.

The Federal Reserve's mind for the time being has been taken off of inflation and turned to means of keeping any recession from snowballing.

Just making money easy doesn't in itself send consumers on a buying spree or make manufacturers step up production schedules but it does make it easier for consumers to buy on the cuff if they feel like it and easier for industry to expand or carry inventories if it feels the outlook justifies it.

More Houses in '58

Easier money also can mean that more funds will be available for buying up mortgages. This, home builders contend, is what their lagging industry needs. And they are more confident now that next year will outpace 1957 in the number of new houses started and financed.

But the slight turning away from tight money hasn't been something just cooked up in Washington. It springs from something that came much earlier than the Federal Reserve action—the downturn in industrial activity, the slackening in expansion planning, the layoffs and production slowdowns.

Business activity set off the march to tight money. And business now is leading the march away from it.

Matter of FACT

Key West, Fla., gets its name from "Cayo Hueso," the old Spanish name meaning reef of bones. It is located on one of the thousands of coral reefs off the coast of Florida. When the first Spaniards came there, they found mounds of human bones on the little island.

St. Louis Speech Tabs Adams as Remarkable Man

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sherman Adams must have super-sensitive ears. Seems he can sit in Washington and hear people talking to him in St. Louis hours before he gets there to listen to them.

This really isn't as puzzling as it sounds. All you have to do is read the remarkable speech he delivered in St. Louis this week.

Lot More Than Title

The white-haired, 58-year-old Adams is President Eisenhower's top White House assistant. But he's a lot more than that title suggests. It has even been suggested he has run the country during Eisenhower's illnesses.

This kind of talk began after the President's 1955 heart attack, picked up speed after Eisenhower's 1956 intestinal operation, and was revived after the President's mild stroke 16 days ago.

Since last spring Adams has been making speeches intended to play down his own importance and play up the President's leadership, physical condition and awareness of what's going on.

This week Adams made a speech before Republicans in St. Louis Monday night. The theme was the same: the President's physical strength, his leadership, the alertness of his mind.

Then he said: "... I have heard some news here that gives me a lift. ...Here are signs of some real political activity—Republican activity.

Feels New Spirit

"Here I feel a new, invigorating spirit . . . All of this I am going to report to our President as soon as I get back to Washington. I assure you that this news will give him, as it has me, a great lift."

But Adams wrote the speech in Washington. The passage about getting a lift from the news he heard in Missouri was in the mimeographed copies handed to newsmen at the White House Monday morning before he left for the West to deliver the speech.

He didn't explain how, while writing the speech here, he could hear what people in St. Louis were telling him hours later, or why he didn't interrupt his speech-writing and run and tell the President what he had just heard.

Johnson Forsees Wartime Plan to Get Missile Lead

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading Democratic senator says the nation may have "to go on a full, wartime mobilization schedule" to pull ahead of Russia in satellites and missiles.

Senate majority leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas said last night:

Must Be "All Out"

"If heads must be knocked together let's do it. If more money is needed, let's spend it. If more resources are needed, let's use them. If more hours are needed, let's work them."

Johnson discussed missiles and satellites in speeches at Waxahachie, Tex., yesterday, and at Dallas last night.

At Middletown, Conn., Rep. Patterson (R-Conn) called last night for a "super-accelerated crash program" in rocket and atomic weaponry, and specifically urged a speedup in work on a nuclear powered airplane.

Johnson also proposed junking the 40-hour work week, but he did not specifically detail what he had in mind.

Labor Critical

That suggestion brought immediate criticism from some AFL-CIO leaders attending the federation's convention in Atlantic City.

Al G. Hayes, president of the Machinists Union, commented:

"We'd better find work for the unemployed aircraft and guided missile workers laid off on account of defense cutbacks during the last five months."

Johnson heads a Senate subcommittee which is investigating the nation's status in the missile-satellite field. He said a lag in U. S. progress was dramatized last week when the nation's first effort to launch a test satellite failed. That attempt was made by the Navy's Project Vanguard at Cape Canaveral. The rocket exploded on the ground.

The senator said that in the race with Russia, scientists and engineers must be given every possible encouragement, scientific production must be put on an efficient basis, and new goals should be set for education.

May Jam TV

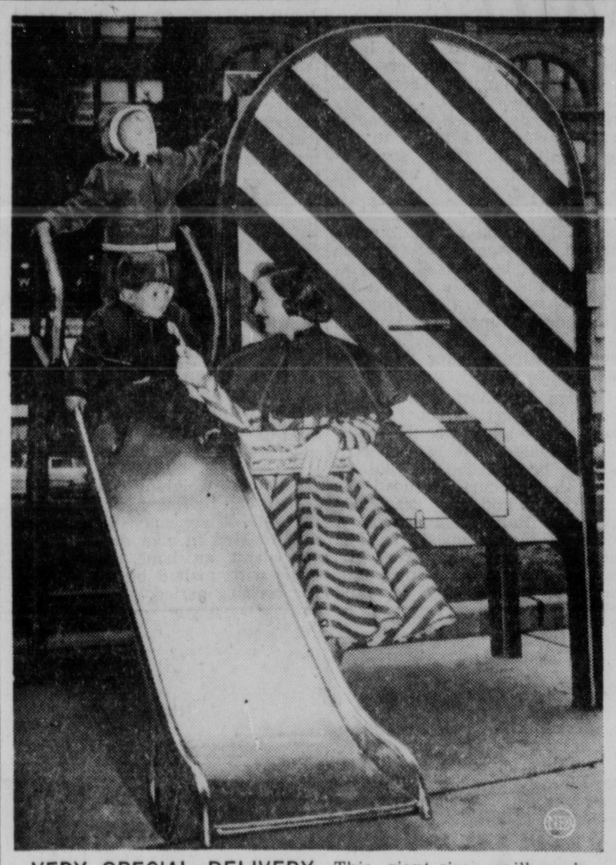

In his Middletown speech, Patterson said he was able to reveal for the first time that the Russians are working on a new one-ton satellite capable of jamming U. S. television and radio communications.

And, he added, other Russian satellites are being designed to carry bombs. He said his information came "from the most reliable and authoritative sources."

In London, the liberal News Chronicle said last night that Britain has made a nuclear research discovery of "greater news than the launching of the Sputniks," but that the United States has refused to let Britain make an announcement.

In an editorial, the newspaper said Britain has had a start of several years on the United States and Russia in taming the H-bomb process for peaceful uses, and now is ready to announce its "terrific potentialities."

Prime Minister Macmillan said Monday night that British scientists working on civilian use of hydrogen power may be heading for "a completely new source of power absolutely unknown before."

VERY SPECIAL DELIVERY—This giant-size mailbox in Detroit, fully equipped with slide, is especially designed for letters from the Motor City's small fry addressed to "Santa Claus, North Pole." Giving it a trial run are Cathy Quinci, 5, and her brother Frank, 4. Kay Jordan rewards them with candy canes.

TO HELP THE NEEDY—These French stamps, to be issued in the near future, will perform a double function. They each have an added surcharge for the benefit of the French Red Cross. The blue 15-franc stamp at left has a surcharge of seven francs, while the violet stamp at right has an extra eight francs added to its 20-franc denomination.

Xmas X-ed Out

NEW YORK (AP)—With the Christmas season coming on, clergymen have cut loose on what they consider offensive accretions to the holiday. A major target: The use of "Xmas". "To put it mildly," says Erik Modean, long-time religious public relations man, "that abbreviation is abhorred."

Blast Kills Four

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP)—A coal mine explosion, which company officials said was caused by an accumulation of gas, killed four men and slightly injured two others early today.

The blast occurred about 5:15 a. m. at Peerless Coal Co.'s No. 3 mine in the Excelsior Field between Hackett and Greenwood, about 18 miles south of here.

W. H. Lewis, owner, and C. A. Melton, a bookkeeper, said the six miners were about a mile from the mouth of the slope mine, which Lewis described as "the deepest underground mine in the state."

Lewis identified the dead as George Simmons of Greenwood, Ark., and L. D. Sewell, Gene Moore and Joe Martin of Paris, Ark. They were killed instantly.

Scores High Court

UTICA (AP) — Rep. Keating (R-NY) said today he thinks the Supreme Court has gone "altogether too far in its zeal to protect the rights of individuals."

In so doing, Keating said, the court "has endangered the safety of the great mass of our people."

Keating, senior Republican on the House Judiciary Committee, criticized some recent high court decisions. His remarks were prepared for the Utica Kiwanis Club.

"I have no quarrel with the desire of the court to protect the rights of each and every citizen," Keating said. . . . "But the guarantees in the Constitution of individual personal liberties do not contemplate the self-destruction of those very liberties."

Chundrigar Quits

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—Prime Minister Ismail Chundrigar resigned today as the Republican Party toppled the government for the second time in two months.

President Iskander Mirza immediately asked Ghundrigar, 60-year-old leader of the Moslem League, to form a new government. The National Assembly then was adjourned.

The Republicans, Pakistan's largest party, withdrew from Chundrigar's coalition in a protest over the prime minister's proposal that elections be held under a separate poll system for Moslems, Hindus and Christians.

Cypriots Driven Off

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Turkish riot police drove off stone-throwing Greek Cypriot students with baton charges today on the fifth straight day of disturbances touched off by the U. N. Cyprus debate.

The students gathered at a school and began hurling stones when police ordered them to leave.

Order was restored quickly with the arrival of a baton-swinging Turkish mobile reserve force. But there was fear that the incident might spark other Greek-Turkish conflicts on the British colony island.

Nolan Wants Tape

Nolan said he would request that the investigating committee be permitted use of the tape in its probe. He said his office was interested in the charges and would be derelict in its duty should it fail to inquire into the nature of the allegations.

Meanwhile, the Kingston Area Ministers Association issued the following statement through the Rev. Everett E. Herron, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene and president of the group:

"In consideration of the events of the past few days, we as ministers, reaffirm our insistence on the continuing observance of all the laws of the community and we sustain and support our brother ministers in their efforts to bring breaches of the law to the attention of agencies of law enforcement and prosecution in the trust that such information will be acted upon forthrightly in the interests of the community."

Rumor About Classis

It was rumored generally in Kingston this morning that the Classis of Ulster, with which the Old Dutch Church is affiliated, had issued a statement in support of the Rev. Mr. Oudemool's action. However, the Rev. Harold Pangburn, pastor of the Saugerties Reformed Church and president of the Classis, told The Freeman that the Classis held a routine meeting Tuesday night. A number of matters were on the agenda, including the request of the Rev. Forrest R. Prindle, pastor of the Church of the Comforter, Kingston, for dismissal from the Classis of Ulster to the Classis of Newark, N. J.

He said the matter of the sale of liquor to minors was not even discussed.

However, the Rev. Mr. Pangburn told The Freeman he could be quoted as saying in connection with the Rev. Mr. Oudemool's action, "More power to him."

Visit Four Taverns

The Rev. Mr. Oudemool in his sermons on Sunday (early and late sermons, the latter of which was broadcast over WSKN) said that he had heard such widespread rumors that minors can go to any bar in Ulster County and get a drink—"whatever they ask for"—they decided last Friday night to find out for himself.

He said that he and the youth, whom he did not identify in his sermon, went to four taverns in the county, including The Barn on Route 28, just west of Kingston. At each of them, he told his startled audiences, the youth was served without hesitation.

Behind Teetsel

George Broome, of Saugerties, president of the Ulster County Hotel and Restaurant Liquor Dealers Association, told The Freeman this morning that the association "is 100 per cent behind Bob Teetsel." He said the association had "no other comment" at this time in view of the fact that the case was now before the grand jury.

He said there were no other meetings or plans contemplated in connection with the matter.

Young Spence told The Freeman this morning before his appearance before the grand jury that the visits to the four taverns in Ulster County was "my idea." He said he "needed a witness" and asked the Rev. Mr. Oudemool to accompany him.

Says ID Cards Farce

He said that "the ID cards (identification cards) are a farce because they (bartenders) don't ask for them. These are the cold, hard facts. Let's face it."

He said that if minors could break a law such as this so easily and with such impunity they "will get the attitude they can break any law." He asked if they would have "any respect for laws and lawmakers" if minors could order alcoholic beverages and be served.

Spence also called attention to the consequences of drink, such as highway fatalities, etc.

The youth said that Kingston state police were advised beforehand of the visits to bars Friday night. He said he felt that Kingston ministers were 100 per cent behind the Rev. Mr. Oudemool.

Praises Minister

The youth's mother told The Freeman that her son "looks younger that 17." She said that anyone who saw him "wouldn't believe he was 18." He had her permission to make the visits to the taverns with the Rev. Mr. Oudemool to test rumors of illegal serving to minors.

She praised the Rev. Mr. Oudemool for his permission in the matter and, using somewhat the same language as the Rev. Mr. Pangburn, said, "The more power to him."

Craig's mother said she had the fullest confidence in her son and trusted him completely.

She said she had heard some criticism because only four taverns were visited, whereas there are some 500 in Ulster County. She called attention to the impossibility of visiting more than a few.

She said Craig was a tetotaler himself and definitely opposed to minors drinking.

"It was very hard for him to walk into a bar and do what he did."

218 Rebels Killed

ALGIERS (AP) — French authorities said today at least 218 rebels were killed in northeastern Algeria last night in two big engagements.

Paratroopers trapped a band of rebels between Philippeville and Bone, killing 67 and taking eight prisoners.

Fighter planes and infantrymen struck at rebel bands moving from the Constantine area toward the Tunisian border, killing at least 151 rebels.

Will Bare Evidence

PANAMA (AP)—Fresh from jail, former President Jose Ramon Guizado said last night he will turn over to the government important evidence" on the 1955 slaying of President Jose Antonio Remon.

Guizado spoke to newsmen at his home after being released from almost three years imprisonment as an accessory in the Remon assassination. The Supreme Court rescinded his conviction by the National Assembly.

Remon was machinegunned to death at a race track clubhouse Jan. 2, 1955. As vice president, Guizado succeeded but was removed and sentenced to six years and eight months in prison. His defense charged he was the victim of a political frameup.

Czechs Set Talks

VIENNA (AP)—The Czechoslovak radio announced today that an economic conference of the eight Warsaw Pact countries will begin tomorrow at Melnik, north of Prague.

The broadcast said the conference would seek further integration of the economies of the Soviet bloc countries—Russia, Poland, East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, and Albania.

Old Pro Santa

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Santa Clauses are multiplying like rabbits in midtown Philadelphia.

But whatever their know-how, none of them seems likely to get ahead of a certain old pro who makes his rounds with a big sign draped from his shoulders. On the sign are the bold words: "Beware of imitations."

Sailors Are Listed As Drowning Victims

GLENS FALLS (AP)—Two sailors whose frozen bodies were found Monday in Blue Mountain Lake had drowned accidentally when their boat sank, a coroner said yesterday.

Coroner John Sullivan said the men, Johnnie M. Munson, 28, of Ledyard, Conn., and Robert Griffith, 26, of Harvey, Ill., probably drowned last Wednesday night.

They were on a hunting trip in the Adirondacks.

Sullivan said he believed the sailors had loaded their hunting and camping equipment and the carcass of a deer into their 14-foot outboard motor boat and tried to cross the ice-covered lake. He said the boat's wooden hull was punctured as they apparently made repeated attempts to break the ice by ramming it.

The boat was found overturned and partially submerged. It was frozen in the ice.

Courtly Problem

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP) — A courthouse still is a court house to Assistant County Supervisor Frank B. Peers. He raised the question of spelling before a meeting of 34 other supervisors who could not offer help. The dictionary, he said, calls it the "courthouse" — one word. But there are many people who insist it is the "court house"—two words. And then, he added, you look outside and at the east door of the building a huge sign says it is the "County Building."

"Monahan's learning to be a mechanic!"

The Mature Parent

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Told He Can 'Do Anything,' He Winds Up Doing Nothing

That day Paul G. returned from school deeply depressed by his introduction to fractions. He couldn't understand them.

As he finally tackled his homework, his mother noted his dispirited state and said soothingly, "Don't worry, dear. You'll find the right answers. I know my boy. There's nothing he can't do if he wants to."

This declaration of unlimited power was her formula for comfort throughout Paul's childhood. She repeated it when he entered new schools, faced exams, looked for summer jobs.

The lying, fond, poisonous incantation against failure made its inevitable groove in Paul's consciousness. He soon learned to deal with his actual experience of failure the only way he could: he pretended it hadn't happened.

When he flunked out of college, it was because a certain teacher had in in for him. When his employers fired him, it was because they were jealous of his superior salesmanship. When his wife left him, it was because his mother-in-law wouldn't mind her own business.

To these increasing experiences in limited power, his mother would say soothingly, "I know my boy. There's nothing he can't do."

But the formula was beginning to sound a little querulous and impatient.

So Paul began to seek the old soothing illusion of unlimited power in alcohol. Drunk, he could stop worrying and again believe himself capable of anything.

I have known many parents who used Mrs. G.'s comfort formula.

If we've been fed on it, we should take a long look at them instead of staring so blankly into the highball we're about to drink.

They themselves are people who can accept no limitations. Their financial affairs are in chaos because bank balances put restrictions on their spending. They break promises because promises put controls on their actions.

They complain endlessly about aches and pains because the encroachment of age on their physical powers is an outrage. They live in terror of dying because dying is the end of power.

To turn finally from that highball, we must first turn finally from trust of these babies as reliable teachers of truth.

They have remained babies because they never stopped trusting the people who said, "Don't worry, dear. There's nothing you can't do if you want to."

Policeman's Lot

BALTIMORE (AP) — John Kurinij testified in Police Court how he asked the bartender to pay him off for his pinball machine winnings. "Shhh," the barkeep replied, "there's a cop sitting at the end of the bar." The bartender was right—it was plainclothesman Charles Donnelly. Only one trouble, though: Kurinij is a cop, too.

Hard Luck Joe Did It Himself

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

Hard Luck Joe ruffed the second heart lead, pulled trumps and remarked, "Well, partner, we missed a slam," and showed his hand.

"Down one at five," growled West.

West was right. The possibility of a five zero break in clubs had never entered Joe's mind.

Joe complained about his hard luck and as usual he had manufactured it all by himself.

There was a simple way to guard against the bad club break. All Joe had to do was to lead one trump to dummy's ace and play a club from dummy. If no one showed out Joe could then draw trumps and claim his slam.

If East ruffed, Joe would simply win East's return, draw trumps and claim the balance. West could growl but he could not get a trick.

If East discarded on the club the play would be slightly more complicated but Joe would still breeze home.

He would win that club trick and play a second high club. East's best play would be to ruff and return a heart. Now Joe would trump in and ruff a low club with dummy's queen of trumps. This would clear the club suit and he would again be able to pull trumps and make his contract.

Think It Through

By E. F. HUTTON

SOAK THE CORPORATIONS

Do corporations pay taxes? No, they collect taxes and hand them to the Government, Federal, State and local.

And from whom do they collect taxes? Their customers—you.

Corporations are tax collectors. It is only in a technical sense that they "pay" taxes, that is, write the checks that the governments get. They simply carry the money, which they get from their customers, to the City Hall, Court House, State House or the U. S. Treasury building.

MR. HUTTON

Take an apartment house with 20 tenants. It has to pay a general property tax at City Hall. Do the tenants escape paying the tax? Not on your life! The owner adds a share of the tax in the rent paid by each tenant.

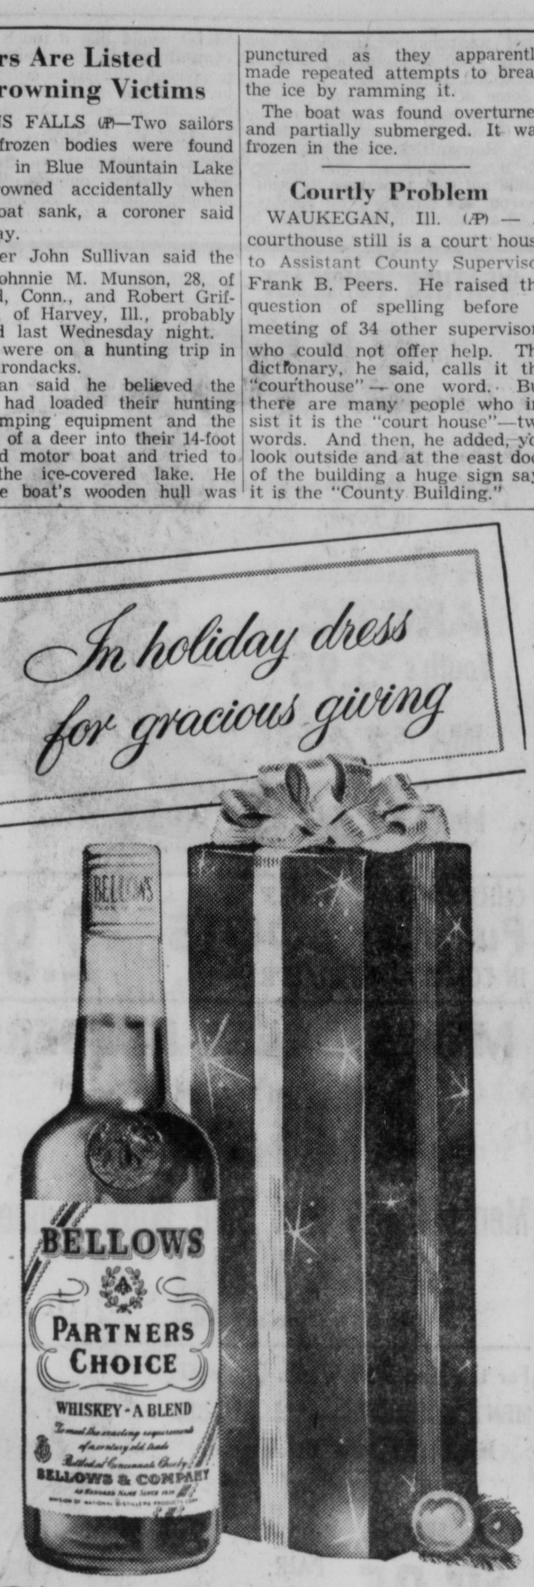

So it goes, big or small. Take one of the biggest, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and its subsidiaries. For the year ending August 31, 1957, the Bell System "paid," in round figures, 742,000,000 $'s, Federal Income Tax, and 497,000,000 $'s in other taxes. Total 1,239,000,000 $'s. That's almost a billion and a quarter dollars.

Where did it get this kind of money? It collected it from its customers—you.

It's O.K. to "tax" corporations. Actually, it may be a convenience to their customers, rather than for each of them to report and pay his share of the taxes direct.

But if the people realized that they pay ALL the taxes, they would not tolerate the colossal wastes in Government.

Texas Foundation Seen Type U. S. Needs for Science Edge

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A foundation created by a modest Texas millionaire who hated to see his name in the paper has been called the type of project needed to help the United States regain world leadership in science.

It's the Robert A. Welch Foundation, which gives about 1½ million dollars a year to Texas colleges and universities for pure chemical research.

15-Fold Increase

In the three years the foundation has been operating, chemical research in Texas has increased more than 15 times.

Welch made his money in oil, land and sulphur. He had come to Texas from Newberry, S. C., as a teen-ager, with 50 cents in his pocket.

He never finished high school, but when he died in 1952 at the age of 81 he left an estate worth an estimated 50 million dollars. A bachelor, Welch never owned a car and he always tipped his barber 10 cents.

In his will he stated: "I have long been impressed with the great possibilities for the betterment of mankind that lay in the field of research in the domain of chemistry."

According to the will, all the money must be spent in Texas. After devoting the first 10 years to chemistry, the foundation will be able to sponsor other types of research.

Taught New Ideas

This year the foundation held a conference attended by 500 chemists. They were taught some new ideas in research chemistry by three Nobel Prize winners, Drs. Peter J. W. Debye, Glenn T. Seaborg and Ernest O. Lawrence.

Seaborg, director of the University of California's radiation laboratory, called the foundation America's "first line of defense in combatting Russia's government-endowed science program."

He added: "It's impossible to evaluate the Robert A. Welch Foundation and its brethern organizations, but without them our research programs would either have to be government-financed or greatly crippled."

Established in 1827

Fort Leavenworth, Kans., was established in 827 as a protection for Santa Fe and other western trade posts against Indian raids.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market drifted lower early this afternoon in quiet trading.

Declines of key stocks were mainly fractional but some losses stretched to around a point.

Steels and several leading motors and rails continued their drop of yesterday but there was no apparent selling pressure. Oils, aircrafts, nonferrous metals and chemicals also slid to the downside.

News that resident Eisenhower is physically fit to attend the NATO conference in Paris failed to provide the stimulus some had hoped for.

Leading steels, motors and rails continued to scrape new bottoms for the year.

Corporate bonds rose in fairly active dealings.

State Department at this time time were of "ample strength" to warrant a vote coming up at this time.

No Date in Picture

No indication was given by Coughlin as to when a vote might be called. He stated that apparently there were petitions containing signatures which had not been sent to the State Department and indicated that the Department would like to have all signatures to petitions before it.

Dr. Gerald W. Sumber, president of the Chambers School P-TA, which sponsored the meeting, said he was well satisfied with the presentation of the matter and felt that "both sides of the question had been honestly presented." He expressed disappointm[illegible] small number of persons present.

"Those [illegible]e there really asked intelligent questions and brought out some more important facts on the questions", Dr. Sumber said. He said the P-TA had called the meeting and presented the facts with the hope that it would bring about a speedy vote on the question of a consolidation. This is the third meeting held in the Chambers School district.

No Vote Taken

No straw vote was taken at the meeting to ascertain the trend of thought on the proposition and from questions asked the panel, and expressions at the meeting, there appears to be a trend toward centralization among the rural districts and to exclude Kingston from the plan.

There was some indication from those present at the meeting that a feeling of "resentment" exists over the fact that the vote is to determine "consolidation or nothing."

No Suggestions

Those who expressed opposition to consolidation, however, suggested no other plan.

One of the questions raised at the meeting was that of representation on the school board in the event of consolidation. It was stated that it would take five years to secure a wholly elected board. Board members would be elected at the May elections as terms of the present board expire and at the end of the five year period the board would consist wholly of members elected from the consolidated district.

Consolidation was defined as a system of "mutual profit to Kingston and the rural districts," a plan under which all of the rural districts in the plan would participate in the whole curriculum.

No City Pressure

David Kline, a member of the Kingston Board of Education, who was a member of the panel, stated it was not the intent of Kingston to influence the decision one way or another but that the Kingston school officials were interested in doing what is best for the student body.

Dr. Earl F. Soper, also a member of the panel and superintendent of Kingston schools, expressed his disappointment over the "apathy" of the public when the good of the youth of the area was at stake. He answered questions regarding the proposed plan.

There are approximately 1,500 non-resident students attending Kingston schools. Dr. Soper said slightly over 1,100 of these come from the school districts involved in the present Greater Kingston Area Consolidation plan.

Figures on Attendance

There are slightly under 1,000 from that area in grades seven through 12 and 165 students from the districts involved in consolidation who attend elementary schools in the city. The total number attending city schools from the areas is "slightly over 1,100." Removal of these students from the Kingston school system would require considerable "re-adjustment" of our school system, Dr. Soper states and until the matter of consolidation has been decided it is difficult for the Kingston board of education to decide upon a firm program for the future.

Acting as moderator of the meeting was H. P. Crispell, and other members of the panel who answered questions were Supervising Principal John H. Moehle of Onteora Central School; Principal Reginald Russell of Chambers School; Edward F. Dingeldey, president of the Chambers School board of education; Norman Hammond of the Lake Katrine school board; Dr. Earl F. Soper, superintendent of schools of Kingston; Trustee David Kline of the Kingston board of education; District Superintendent of Schools Clarence Johnson and Howard F. Mansfield of Tillson.

The matter of finances was discussed by President Edward F. Dingeldey, Chambers School board, who called attention to the existing inequalities in school taxes, citing districts which have a large assessed valuation and a low school tax rate while other districts, such as the Chambers School District are considered "poor" districts in that they have a large school population and low assessed valuation. This inequality would be solved through consolidation and all districts would have the benefit of a full curriculum, not available in all districts now.

The question was also raised as to what would be done with first year high school students if Kingston finds it impossible to receive them. Acceptance of other pupils into the Kingston school system, it was pointed out, depended on ability to accept them and it was pointed out that the Kingston Board of Education program must be held in abeyance pending the outcome of the consilidation question.

In his discussion Coughlin explained what consolidation does, what it had done in other communities and said consolidation was the best way to handle our educational program in areas similar to the proposed Greater Kingston Consolidated District.

E. Germans Warned

BERLIN (AP) — Communist East Germany, in a new effort to block the mass exodus of refugees to the west, today made it a criminal offense to flee the satellite nation.

The East German Parliament rubber-stamped decrees opening the way for big scale reprisals against relatives and friends who may help the escapees from communism.

Nearly 6,000 East Germans now are pouring every week into refugee camps in West Berlin and West Germany. The refugee stream is stripping East German factories and farms of critically needed workers and skilled technicians.

Seven Named

of the Industrial Procurement Committee. This committee requested and was granted the authority to sponsor an informal conference of Chamber of Commerce representatives from the entire Mid-Hudson Valley region to consider the possibilities of launching a promotional program for the entire area. This committee also recommended that area or county-wide planing be pushed as rapidly as possible as the most important single factor in attracting new employment opportunities. The committee will also foster a program designed to foster better community and citizen attitude toward expansion and development. The action taken also requested all citizens to inform the Chamber office of any new industrial prospects.

During the meeting, two Boy Scouts were given the privilege of the floor and explained the efforts of Troop 4 to save the Perrine covered bridge as a historic shrine. They asked if those present would sign the petition being circulated and all obliged.

Reports indicated increased activity of legislative committees. On Monday the National Legislative Affairs Committee met here with Congressman J. Ernest Wharton and recently the State Legislative Affairs Committee met with State Senator E. Ogden Bush and Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson. At both meetings the importance of legislation which would help create a still better climate for business and industry was discussed.

The Business-Education Day Committee reported 37 cooperating forms to date which will entertain teachers on B-E Day scheduled for January 24. Four or five additional cooperators could be accommodated.

The Retail Merchant's Committee, under the chairmanship of Clyde Wonderly, will continue its efforts to organize an area-wide council of retailers to carry on a unified promotional program after the holidays.

The next regular meeting of the board of directors will take place Jan. 14, 1958 at which time officers for 1958 will be elected. Retiring director William R. Stall was named as chairman of the nominating committee. The January meeting will be the first regular meeting for the seven newly elected directors.

ing place through the creek to the island and that no changes were made, except to have a bulldozer smooth out the ford for the trucks to cross. It is denied that any obstructions were placed in the creek and that the damage done in 1955 to the Bianco premises was caused solely by "unprecendented" rainfall in the Rondout Valley which caused floods never before experienced in the valley. Norman Kellar, who appears as counsel for Mrs. Ackerman, claims the damage done to the Bianco property was caused by "natural obstructions" and by the unusually high flood waters and that there was no roadway made over the south channel to cause floods and that Mrs. Ackerman is no way contributed to the condition. The damage, she alleges was caused by the unusual flow of some 35,000 cubic feet of water per second which flowed through the Rosendale Valley at the time of the October flood and also in August.

Testimony Starts

A jury was completed Tuesday in Supreme Court before Justice Harry E. Schirick and taking of testimony started. Raymond J. Mino appears for plaintiff, Joseph Bianco, with Guido J. Napoletano of counsel. O'Connell and Aronowitz with Howard C. St. John of counsel appears for defendant John Arborio and Normal Kellar appears as counsel for Mrs. Ackerman.

The right-of-way of the 9W-32 spur has been cleared and fill is now being moved in place. A section of Route 32 will be relocated in the area of the western approach road, and the latter will overpass Route 32. The spur will join 9W at grade.

Army Backs Moon

attempt of last Friday failed.

The Defense Department said the Redstone test vehicle launched at 7:37 p. m. last night was in the Army Jupiter program.

The program also includes the Jupiter intermediate range ballistic missile, capable of distances of 1,500 miles, and the Jupiter C research rocket, which already has been fired a distance of 3,500 miles and to an altitude of 600 miles.

Top defense officials visiting the Army Jupiter missile production line at Huntsville yesterday were shown a sample of the Army's satellite.

Weight About Same

It will weigh about the same as the 21-pound sphere which the Vanguard project hopes eventually to put into orbit.

Unlike either the full scale Vanguard or the miniature version—the 6.4 inch, 3¼ pound aluminum ball which the Navy intends to launch with the 72-foot Vanguard rocket—the Army satellite will consist of the final state of the rocket itself.

This will be a cylinder about three feet long, rounded at the forward end like the nose of a bullet.

The metal casing of the last rocket stage will remain after the propellant has burned out, while the vehicle is traveling at about 18,000 miles an hour. It will contain automatic radio reporting instruments for sending information back to earth.

The Jupiter C uses the liquid propelled Redstone missile as the primary first stage power plant, and has smaller solid fuel rocket engines for its second and third stages.

Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, head of the Army ballistics missile agency, has said, however, that to be used as a satellite launcher, the Jupiter C must have four or more propulsion units.

The Jupiter C is said to be even taller, heavier and more powerful than the Vanguard. Its first stage Redstone alone is more than 60 feet tall and six feet in diameter.

Change in . . .

Department of Audit and Control, it appears that this system has been criticized because of the fact that there is no statutory authorization for the hiring of counsel. To supplant the present system, it would be absolutely necessary that two additional assistant district attorneys be provided for in the budget at an annual salary of $4,000. Such additional district attorneys would result in an increase to the taxpayers of $5,000 per year.

"The Department of Audit and Control cites Section 703 of the County Law as its statutory authority for holding the old system of hiring counsel as unauthorized. As I read this section, it is in no way support for their contention. Section 703 deals with charges in which indictments are pending and in no way limits the inherent power of the district attorney to provide justice for all in this County. Indeed, Section 705 of the County Law, which permits a prosecution fund, would impliedly authorize expenditure of a district attorney such as have been done in the past.

"I would, therefore, suggest that you obtain a ruling from the County Attorney as to the interpretation of Section 703 of the County Law and I am sure you will act in accordance with the best interests of the citizens of Ulster County."

Ike's Fitness

for Eisenhower, Dulles and their advisers. European governments are looking for concrete measures by the United States to achieve new political, economic and military results. They intend to press upon this country some proposals which the administration thus far has viewed unfavorably.

Dulles Doubtful

Italy is interested in a new economic program for the Middle East and North Africa, which would pool resources jointly contributed by the United States and many European countries. Dulles told his news conference yesterday that the central idea of this proposal is a good one, but he obviously found difficulty in seeing the Italian plan as acceptable.

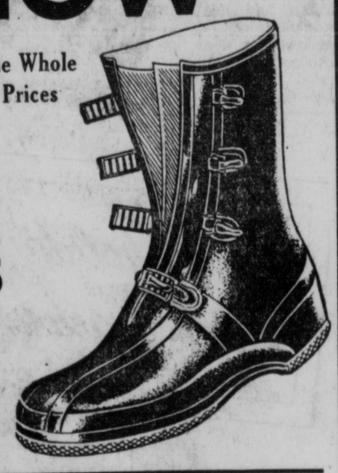

Many of the European countries would like effective voices in the disposition and use of atomic weapons. Present U. S. policy calls for keeping American nuclear weapons in American custody even though they will be stockpiled in Europe.

Some of the allies are reported reluctant to have American missile bases set up on their territory. Recognizing this, Dulles told his news conference this country would not seek to impose its weapons on any nation.

All of the European nations in NATO would like a much greater commitment by the United States to consult with them before making decisions in which they might have an interest. Eisenhower is prepared to promise the fullest consultation possible, but not to pledge consultation to the point where, in his opinion, it might hamper American freedom of action in some possible future crisis.

Will Issue Bonds

ALBANY (AP)—State Comptroller Arthur Levitt plans to issue 37½ million dollars in mental health construction bonds for public sale Jan. 14.

The bonds will be dated Jan. 15 and will mature in equal annual installments over the next 15 years, Levitt said yesterday.

This is the second sale of the 350 million dollars of mental health bonds authoried in 1954. On Oct. 1, bonds worth 24 millions were sold.

Levitt said the sale would provide funds for acquiring land for building mental hospitals.

Area Brick Firm Lists New Line Of Face Bricks

The Jova Brick Works, of Roseton, one of the oldest and largest brick manufacturers in the Hudson Valley, today announced presentation of a new line of face bricks to area architects and builders.

The company said each of its new face brick colors has been titled for an historically important name in the river's five centuries of settlement and development in the light of the forthcoming Hudson River centennial celebration.

Joseph Jova, president, said: "It is only natural that a company whose name has been immediately associated for as long as Jova's has with the great river should wish to participate in a celebration of the historical contributors of that river. My congratulations to Gov. Harriman, Edward Dickinson, Carl Carmer and others who are preparing such sound and interesting plans for the celebration."

Assassinated

King Humber tof Italy was assassinated by an anarchist in 1900. President McKinley of the United States was assassinated by an anarchist the following year, 1901.

Nobel Winner Is Partial to West

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—East-West rivalry invaded the nonpolitical atmosphere of the annual Nobel Prize banquet and ball last night when a Chinese-born physics prize winner took a public stand for the west.

Standing before King Gustaf Adolf VI of Sweden and 2,000 other guests, Dr. Chen Ming Yang said, "I have dedicated myself to science which is born out of western origin."

Did Work in U. S.

Yang, of the institute for advanced study at Princeton, N. J., and Dr. Tsung Dao Lee of Columbia University, New York, shared the 1957 prize in physics. Both are American-trained and did their prize-winning work in the United States.

The guests included diplomats from Britain, France and Italy, whose citizens won the other prizes of $42,000 each presented yesterday by the king. Both the Nobel committee sidestepped Red China's efforts to claim the two young physicists by not inviting diplomats from either Peiping or Washington.

Both the physicists are citizens of Nationalist China but have applied for American citizenship.

In a brief speech, Yang recalled the Boxer uprising of 1900 in China to throw out foreigners. A combined military force of foreign powers quelled the uprising and extracted indemnities from China.

Typical of Nation

"The United States returned her share immediately, the money to be used for the education of students," Yang said. "This was typical of the United States. I was a direct beneficiary of this and so I have dedicated myself to science which is born out of western origin."

The other prize winners also spoke briefly to the crowd in the gold-leafed halls of Stockholm's city hall. The other winners were Albert Camus of France, literature; Sir Alexander Todd of Britain, chemistry; and Daniel Bovet of Italy, medicine.

Kilmer Elected By Ulster Hose

Officers of Ulster Hose Company No. 5 were named at the annual election Monday night.

They are:

Alfrederick Kilmer, president; Walter Burger, vice-president; Gerald Woodvine, treasurer; Richard Lowe, recording secretary; Nicholas Kachura, financial secretary and Joseph Senor, board of directors.

Others named were:

Harry A. Lowe, chief; Louis Every, assistant chief; George Dall, captain; Ray Bellows, first lieutenant; Joseph W. Quick, second lieutenant and Orville Klomps, third lieutenant.

This Saturday the company will again escort Santa Claus through the fire and protection district.

Santa will begin his tour at the fire house at 8 a. m., proceeding along the same route as in previous years.

If the weather does not permit Santa to visit on Saturday he will try to make the tour on the following day.

A New Yorker In Washington

By JAMES C. MUNN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two employes of the Federal Power Commission, recipients of bitter verbal barbs by Robert Moses for what he called their "spinesless acquiescence," plan no public reply.

Moses, chairman of New York State's Power Authority blasted Examiner William J. Costello and Deputy Counsel John C. Mason for allowing recently concluded FPC hearings on the Niagara Falls power project "to drag out," as Moses put it.

Amused, It Seems

Costello and Mason, both veterans of FPC service, appear to be more amused than annoyed by Moses' sharp words. Each participated in the controversial Hells Canyon power case when it was before the FPC, so they are no strangers to harsh words.

In any event, each declined to reply—for the record—to Moses.

Among other things, Moses said Mason was "more interested in his vacation than in putting an end to stultifying delays."

And, in referring to Costello, Moses recalled "that in a recent hydro case this same examiner took 10 months to file his report and recommendation." Moses presumably had reference to the Hells Canyon case.

By and large, FPC employes charged with conducting hearings take the position that they must follow prescribed procedures no matter how urgently applicants call for action.

Just Another Case

"It's the same thing, every case," one FPC employe said. "Each applicant thinks his case is the most important thing in the world. To us it's just another case—and all have to be handled in the same way under our rules of procedure."

The commission's decision not to await the examiner's recommendation in the Niagara case will expedite issuance of a final license to the New York Authority for construction of the 600 million dollar project.

The commission's action came as no surprise. Costello, prior to the start of the hearing on Oct. 1, told a reporter it was expected.

Depends on Wife

The commission's bypassing of the examiner bring to mind a recent incident in the office of Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R), New York City. A constituent seeking Javits' prompt, personal attention to his problem, sought to have Mrs. Javits intervene.

He enclosed his letter to the senator with another to Mrs. Javits and then addressed both to her. Explaining the action, the constituent's letter to Mrs. Javits said:

"I am writing this to you because I want this letter to get to the direct attention of the senator and I thought that the best way to do it would be to address his attractive wife.

"I know flattery will get me nowhere, but I think that nobody goes through your mail whereas it is probably impossible for a senator to read all his mail himself. I would very much appreciate it if you would direct this to the personal attention of your husband."

His letter received an answer.

The Gendreau family were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Crispell in Middlehope.

Humble Pardon

MATSUZAKA, Japan (AP) — A Maryknoll missioner, the Rev. Robert R. Zahn, reports that when he took elderly parishioners on a tour of a new church, including an inspection of the loft high above the altar, one 80-year-old woman dropped to her knees, praying aloud: "Forgive me, dear Lord, I'm higher up here than you are in your tabernacle."

82 Million Bedded

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Leroy E. Burney, U. S. surgeon general, says half the American population was confined to bed by upper respiratory infections at some time between July 1 and Nov. 9.

Burney told the annual meeting of the Institute of Life Insurance yesterday that 82,000,000 Americans were confined to beds because of the illness during that period.

He said the figures were based on a new national health survey conducted during that period.

School Support

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, president of the National Council of Churches, told a meeting of Protestant teachers: "Unless Protestants as Protestants support the public school system in the United States, no one else will."

December 18 Set For Glasco Park District Hearing

A public hearing before the Saugerties Town Board on a petition requesting the formation of a special park district for the hamlet of Glasco will be held Wednesday, Dec. 18, in Glasco firehall at 8 p. m.

Acceptance of the proposal will authorize procedure to float a short term $20,000 bond issue for the purchase of the park site and equipment.

Seek 18-Acre Site

The park district proposal involves the purchase of the 18-acre Washburn property in Glasco. During earlier discussions the asking price was $18,000 for the site.

Preliminary plans call for the park facilities to include two baseball diamonds, tennis courts, track, ice skating rink, playground equipment and landscaping.

It was estimated by a spokesman for the Saugerties Town Board that the tax rate would be about $5 per $1,000 assessed valuation charged only to those within the proposed park district.

Boundary Listed

The district boundaries proposed begin at a point where the Mud Brook enters the Hudson River; thence west along the Mud Brook to the north bounds of the Monteleone property; thence along the Montelone property line to Route 9W; thence along the north bounds of the Klubenspies property to the center of Esopus Creek; thence along the creek south to the center of the Glenerie Bridge on County Road No. 34 (Glasco Turnpike); thence along the turnpike east to the center of Route 9W; thence north along Route 9W to the center of the old state road; thence southeast to the old Lasher Road; thence along the center of same road to the center of Route 32; thence easterly to the west shore of the Hudson River; thence north along the river to the place of beginning.

'Showpram'

A dressed-up bassinet for Baby really is a portable "showpram" to show the infant to the neighbors. It is of basket-woven fiber over a folding chrome frame. A well-lathered sponge wipes it clean.

Bulls Nab Bull

BALTIMORE (AP)—There was no one around to shout "Ole!" but patrolmen Walter Sheppard and Hallam Evans finally subdued the one-ton Brahma bull in a clearing off Washington Boulevard. The bull had vaulted the fence of a meat-packing company pen. The police fired away with revolver and 30-30 rifle as the enraged lanima charged their car again and again, but bullets bounced off his tough hide. They finally brought him down, after using about 50 bullets.

Weather Phenomenon

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A "dust devil"—a small localized whirl of wind caused by excessive and uneven heating of air near the ground—carried a 90-pound boat over a backyard fence here and dropped it 80 feet away. Had he been on the scene, the boat owner might have taken a scientific interest in the scene. He's Bob Burwell, an observer at the Columbus Weather Bureau.

1,185 MPH Jet Hop Fails to Set Record

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—An Air Force jet flew an estimated 1,185 m.p.h. over a measured straight-away course,—53 m.p.h. better than Great Britain's world record.

But the flight yesterday did not qualify as a new record because of a failure in photographic timing equipment.

The F101 Voodoo streaked across a 10.1-mile course east and west at 39,100 feet altitude.

Well informed non-military sources said Maj. Adrian E. Drew, 37, Austin, Tex., averaged an estimated 1,185 m.p.h. on the two passes. One run was reportedly over 1,190 m.p.h.

But an Air Force information officer said after hours of study of records of the flight:

"The flight was disqualified as a record because of lack of photographic proof. One of the photos loused up through a light leak in the camera magazine."

Thus, no official time will be announced on yesterday's runs.

Music-Mobile

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Books aren't the only thing the Oklahoma State Library's new bookmobiles will be carrying soon to rural areas of the state. Classical records including Beethoven and Brahms are going into the trucks equipped as libraries. State Librarian Ralph Hudson said as far as he can learn, they will be the first in the country carrying records into rural areas.

Light on Subject

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — Sheriff Ford Vance said officers investigating a burglary found on the floor the electric light bill of Matthew Magee, 42, of 514 South 6th Street. They went to that address and arrested Magee who admitted the burglary but couldn't explain how he happened to leave his light bill on the scene.

SEASON'S GREETINGS — The world's largest man-made Christmas tree, 100 feet high with a trunk of steel, this year features animation. Located on the grounds of General Electric's Nela Park in suburban Cleveland, Ohio, the giant tree is hooked up to an electro-mechanical cycling device and lights up in five sequences to provide the animation effect. Giant, lighted toys are scattered under the tree and more than 7,000 bulbs in bluish green and pink are strung over its huge frame. Nearby hundreds of lamps spell out a cordial Merry Christmas in greeting to the half million sightseers who annually visit the display.

KING OF SPADES—"Big Paul, the King of Spades," is the first of three giant excavators to be put into operation by the Peabody Coal Company. Used in the company's new River King Mine near Freeburg, Ill., the stripping shovel can scoop up 105 tons with its big dipper, enough to fill two railroad cars.

How Widow Can Invest Money to Her Advantage

By BEULAH STOWE

Mrs. C. T. is a widow 66 years years old. She receives a monthly Social Security payment of $42 and she has a savings account at the bank of $20,000, which pays her 3 per cent interest. (Or $50 a month.)

Could she do better with her money, Mrs. T. asks? She lives alone in an apartment and rent takes a big piece of her monthly income.

Mrs. T. might consider these alternatives:

1. Invest $18,000 in a conservative stock which pays 5 per cent interest. This will leave her $2,000 in the bank for emergencies. She will earn $800 a year (or $75 a month) interest on the $18,000 investment--$25 a month more than she is now receiving on the entire $20,000.

2. Or she might buy a $10,000 house in a suburb or in a small town, and rent it until such time as she might want to live in it herself. If she rented the house for $65 a month—a low price in most communities—the $10,000 invested in the house would bring her an annual income of $780. She would receive $25 a month interest on the $10,000 still in the bank, to give her a monthly income of $90, instead of the $50 she now receives with the savings account as her sole investment.

The house could be rented with the provision that the tenant make all normal repairs necessary to maintain the property. Taxes would reduce Mrs. T's profit somewhat. But she would gain two advantages: a higher return on her money while the house is rented, and a home for herself in the future.

3. There's a third choice. It's uncomfortable, but not necessarily impractical. This is for Mrs. T. to leave her money in the savings account, and withdraw up to $500 a year to ease the squeeze on expenses. It would take her 40 years to expend the $20,000. (Meanwhile, interest on the account would diminish proportionately.) This would work, but most women would not enjoy living this way. They would prefer to use their capital to make more money, than to eat away at the capital in a calculated risk.

Q—"Where can my wife and I live on $200 a month?"—R. B. P.

A—Almost anywhere, but quietly. Avoid the big cities. Live in a trailer in St. Petersburg, in a small house in the Rio Grande Valley in Texas, in a pre-fab on the hills of California, or in a cottage in South Dakota. Plan to hold housing costs under $50 and keep the remaining $150 for food, clothing, medical bills, and recreation. It isn't easy, but many retired people are doing it every day and it doesn't show.

Mendelssohn Concert Receives Laudatory Reaction on Program

The Mendelssohn Club, male chorus of Kingston, presented its annual Christmas concert on Monday, Dec. 9 under the direction of Albert G. Hunter Jr. This was the first concert for the 1957-58 season and also the first time that the club has appeared with their new conductor.

Mr. Hunter's inspiring leadership was evident in the response of the men in each of their selections on their varied seasonal program.

The Christmas season was ushered in with a program of music sparkled in its broad range of appeal with something to satisfy everyone in the audience.

From the Russian "Gloria," and the stirring "Ecce Panis Angelorum," both arranged by R. Lee Gilliam, to the popular "Silver Bells," by Terry, the club displayed a warmth and tonal line which thrilled their audience.

The club presented as guest artists, the Community Mixed Chorus A Cappella Singers of Poughkeepsie under the direction of Constance Jessup. This group displayed excellent musicianship particularly when singing Madrigals.

Mrs. William E. Rylance, accompanist for the Mendelssohn Club, gave excellent support to the group at the piano and her playing of the difficult Bach, "Alleluia," was a high point of the program.

Incidental solo parts were ably sung by William R. Raiford, baritone, and John A. McCullough, tenor.

Appearing as soloists for the A Cappella Chorus were Shirley Emrich and Irene Leverett. Miss Leverett, in her solo selection, "Although You Are So Tiny," accompanied herself on the harp and delighted the audience. Miss Emrich gave an equally excellent performance.

The last part of the program combined the two vocal groups and their singing was a tribute to the excellent training by their conductors and proved a fitting climax to their Christmas selections.

THEATRE PARTY OR ANNIVERSARY PARTY?

Dear Mrs. Post: "We are a group of ten women who meet once a week. At each meeting we all put a dollar into the treasury and as soon as we have enough money saved we treat our husbands to dinner and the theatre. Last month we wrote for tickets for a play. We didn't ask for any specific date but requested them to send us the first available tickets for a Saturday night. We received the tickets and several days later my husband and I received an invitation to my sister's twenty-fifth wedding anniversary for the same date. I think we should tell the group that we will be unable to go with them. In my opinion it would be a slight to my sister not to go to her party. My husband thinks that since we already had the tickets when her invitation arrived, we should go to the theatre as planned and explain the situation to my sister. What is your opinion?

Answer: Strictly speaking, your husband is right and under ordinary circumstances you would not break a previous engagement. However, your own sister's twenty-fifth anniversary is an important event that happens only once, and the rest of your group will surely understand your going to it, whereas I am afraid your sister will never quite forgive you for thinking that a theatre party—even one already arranged—was more important than her silver anniversary party. My advice, therefore, is to go to your sister's party.

Placing of Reception Invitation

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me where the reception invitation is placed when enclosed with the church invitation? Should it be put on top of the engraved sheet or placed between the two inside folds of the invitation. (The invitation is one that fits into the envelope without further folding.)

Answer: It is placed on top of the engraved page.

A Man and His Hat

Dear Mrs. Post: When does a man put on his hat when leaving someone's house? Shouldn't he hold it in his hand until he has left the house?

Answer: He puts his hat on his head as he goes out the front door.

Church Council Is Formed in Saugerties Area

A Council of Churches in Saugerties has been established and will be ready to begin its activities soon after the first of the year. The final draft of the Constitution and By-Laws was adopted at a dinner meeting held at the First Congregational Church, Saugerties, on Nov. 26, with the following churches participating: Atonement Lutheran; Blue Mountain; Reformed; First Congregational; Flatbush Reformed; Malden Methodist; Saugerties Methodist; Saugerties Dutch Reformed; St. Paul's Lutheran, West Camp; Trinity Episcopal Church was represented by its rector, who had been invited as a visitor.

The purpose of the Council is defined in the preamble of the constitution: "Being aware of the need for closer cooperation among the Christian Churches of Saugerties area and of the opportunity for a wider field of unified services in loyalty to the mission of the Church of Jesus Christ, we establish this Council of Churches."

Practically speaking, the aim of the Council is to express, through fellowship, cooperation and service, the essential unity of the Christian Church, to promote better understanding among the churches, and to provide an interdenominational agency for cooperation in Christian Education, social action, worship, evangelism, stewardship, world missionary work, community fellowship, and to study the religious needs of the community, and devise plans and programs through which these needs can best be met.

The constitution provides that the financial support of the Council's program is to be derived from contributions by member churches, individuals and affiliated non-member organizations. The Finance Committee is charged with the responsibility of preparing an annual budget and for securing the needed funds.

The first slate of officers elected and who will serve until the annual meeting in May, 1958 are the following: president, the Rev. Frederick Imhoff, First Congregational, Saugerties; vice president and director of public relations, Dr. Henry J. Arnold, St. Paul's Lutheran, West Camp; secretary, Edward Kiernan, Atonement Lutheran, Saugerties; treasurer, Leroy Snyder, Saugerties Reformed.

The constitution provides that a member church shall be represented on the Council by its minister and a lay person or alternate, duly elected by the church board. As soon as the various churches unite with the Council by official action of the congregations of governing bodies, they will notify the Council secretary, in writing, of such action and the names of their lay representatives will also be recorded.

The following ministers have participated in the three organizational meetings which have been held thus far: the Rev. Frederick Imhoff, the Rev. James Blase, the Rev. August Pfaus Jr., the Rev. Herbert F. Arbogast, the Rev. George P. Werner, the Rev. Harold Pangburn, the Rev. Alvin Messersmith, and the Rev. Richard Crossland.

The next meeting of the Council is scheduled for Monday, Dec. 16, at 6 p. m. at Atonement Lutheran Church. Dinner will be served by one of the women's auxiliary groups of the church.

79th Anniversary Observed by Aged Couple in Utah

FIARVIEW, Utah (AP)—Peter and Celestia Peterson, childhood sweethearts, observed their 79th wedding anniversary today. The aging couple planned to mark the event with a quiet day at home, in this central Utah town where both were born.

The two could be the longest-wed couple in the nation.

Peterson, 97, says "plain living and very fair health" have contributed to their almost four-score years together. He also credits God and the fact that neither he nor his wife, 96, has ever smoked or drank.

But, most of all, he credits love. "To love and respect each other is the greatest thing in marriage," he says. "All newly married people must have love to begin with or their marriage won't work out."

The Petersons were at home today to the seven of their 10 children who still survive. Also expected were some of the couple's 48 grandchildren, 149 great-grandchildren and 32 great-great grandchildren.

Vocations Needed

WINOOSKI PARK, Vt. (AP)—The Very Rev. E. Francis E. Moriarty, president of Roman Catholic St. Michael's college, says there is a "terribly urgent" need for more youths to enter lifetime religious vocations.

Once upon a time a Chinaman gardener sold a horse to a farmer, and during the transaction he repeatedly said:" Horsee no look well, but plenty pull." It was subsequently discovered that the animal was blind, and, incensed at being taken in by a Chinaman, the purchaser took John to court.

Magistrate—Did you know the horse was blind?

John—Oh, yeh, I know long tam.

Magistrate—Then why didn't you tell him so?

Research Vaults Underground Are Planned at RPI

TROY (AP) — Underground vaults for atomic research are included in plans for a six-million-dollar science center at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

John A. Amstuz, development council chairman, said yesterday the center would be constructed in four buildings on the Troy campus.

He said the project was part of RIP's program to double its enrollment.

Two underground vaults will be built for research in atomic fusion, and one building will be topped by a planetarium and an optical laboratory, Amstuz said.

The center will include a 650-seat theater with movable stages and facilities for films and closed or open circuit television.

Amstuz said construction of the first unit may begin in 1958.

College Work Halted Due to Labor Dispute

ONEONTA (AP) — Construction work on a million-dollar dormitory at Oneonta State Teachers College remained halted today by a labor dispute.

William Osterhout, the business agent of the laborers union, said yesterday members of his and other construction workers' unions were refusing to pass picket lines of the electrical workers union. The dispute erupted yesterday.

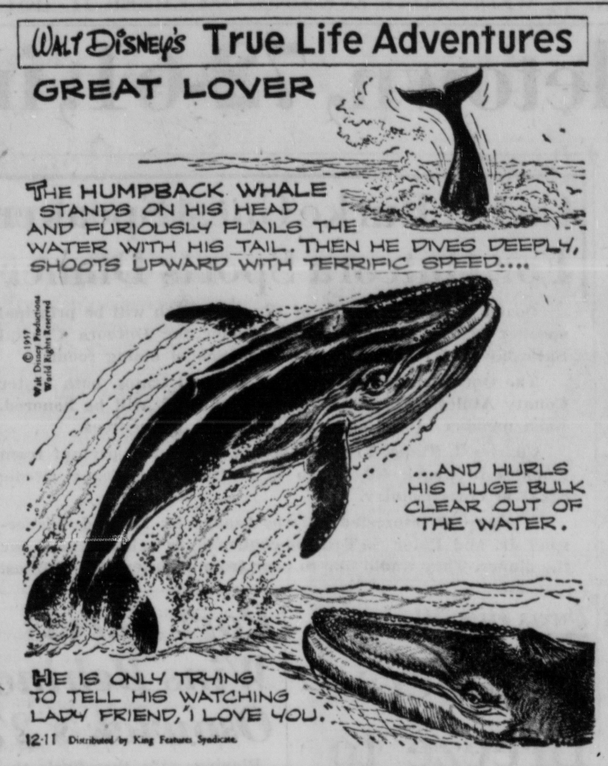

Clyde Utter, an electrical contractor, said the union was picketing in protest over non-union men hired by William Palmer, another electrical contractor.

Palmer could not be reached for comment.

George Hallett, business agent of Electrical Workers Local 325, declined comment.

The dormitory has been under construction since early in the summer. It is scheduled for completion next fall.

Vermont is top producer of granite and marble in the U. S.

Private Trashmen End 4-Day Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — A four-day strike of private trashmen in the metropolitan area ended last night in a two-year agreement with private carting employers.

City Labor Commissioner Harold A. Felix announced the settlement after a seven-hour negotiating session between the employers and representative of Local 813, International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

The union said the men would return to work today.

The agreement was accepted by the union at a membership meeting in Manhattan.

The pact, retroactive to Dec. 1, provides a $9 weekly wage increase. It calls also for increased contributions of $1 a week by each employer to the union's pension and welfare fund, effective next Dec. 1. The pact is effective to Nov. 30, 1959.

The old contract provided wages of $90 a week for drivers of closed trucks and $83 for helpers. Drivers of open trucks received $100 and their helpers $89.

New Niagara Sheriff

ALBANY (AP) — Gov. Harriman today appointed James K. Murphy, Lewiston Democrat, as sheriff of Niagara County for a term ending Dec. 31, 1958.

Murphy succeeds Arthur Muisiner of Lockport, who died.

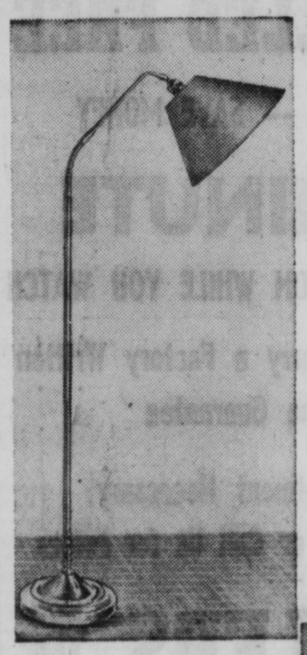

Murphy, 49, is a locomotive engineer for the New York Central Railroad, and is chairman of the air pollution board of Niagara Falls.

High School Turns Back Middletown, 72-61, in DUSO Opener

MIDDIE TORMENTORS — Kingston High made an auspicious debut in the DUSO League basketball race by taking Middletown, 72-61, last night at the mid-city field house. Standout performers included (l to r) George Uhl, who led both teams in scoring with 22; Charlie Williams, who tabbed 19, and Bob Strong, who hit for 12 and grabbed 15 rebounds. (Freeman photo).

Uhl, Williams, Strong Excel in Impressive Win

By SAM ANZALONE
Freeman Sports Staff

After a shaky start, Kingston High came on big behind top-flight performances by George Uhl, Charlie Williams and Bob Strong to down Middletown, 72-61, last night at the mid-city. The contest was the opener for both quintets in the DUSO League.

Uhl and Williams paced the point-making with 22 and 19 respectively and Strong lived up to his name on defense, fielding 15 rebounds. He also manufactured 12 counters.

Connecting on 47 per cent of their shots, the Maroons zoomed from the rear in the second period to snatch the lead and then were never headed. The contest was slightly reminiscent of KHS's opening win over Arlington when the locals rallied late to triumph.

Middies Overtaken

Kingston caught the Middies midway through the second stanza after the Blue and White had held forth at the first break, 15-7. Seven straight points forged KHS in front, 25-23, for the first time since early in the game. Four players collaborated in the spree—Williams, Strong, Joe Klonowski and John Kelly—with the latter's bucket getting the lead.

Gordie Bertholf immediately knotted it with a layup, but Uhl, who canned 27 against Arlington, fired two straight pretty set shots to gain KHS the lead for keeps. Kingston took a 31-27 lead into the locker rooms at halftime.

Strong had a hot hand in the third period, and with assistance from Uhl and Williams, sparked KHS to a 12-point bulge, 44-32, with 4:33 left. The rugged 6-3 veteran, who fouled out of the opener without denting the scoring column, tossed in 8 points in a 20-16 spurt which boosted the locals to a 51-43 three-quarter advantage. Uhl contributed 6 to the drive and Williams, hustling all the way, 4.

Williams really had the crowd on his side by the time the final period rolled around with his spark. He sank two one-handers on the run from deep in the corner that were dandies. Altogether he poured through 11 markers to highlight a 21-point flurry which locked things up.

Rosen Hits 18

Jeff Rosen, 6-1 junior, was the standout for the losers. He canned 18, including 8 in the first period drive, and looks like a real comer.

Strong, with help from Hobie Armstrong, Klonowski and Wells bottled up Middletown's big guns, 6-5 center John Price and Gordie Bertholf. Price was held down to 9 points and was in trouble with four fouls as early as the first half. Bertholf hit for 10 but was outrebounded at almost every turn.

Kingston's hottest shooting period was the second when it dunked in a scintillating 58 per cent, making 11 for 19. That was the big scoring quarter, the Maroon totaling 24 points. The locals shot a dismal 23 per cent in the first period (3-13), 53 in the third (8-15) and 55 in the fourth (6-11).

Uhl All-Around Star

Uhl, in addition to his prolific scoring, played another great all-around game. He assisted on 9 goals and pulled down 7 rebounds. Williams assisted on four baskets and had the Middies dizzy, blocking shots and stealing passes with his quick movements.

Coach Jack Gilligan made liberal use of his bench which appears pretty deep. He threw 8 boys into the fray, interchanging them at various stages. He began with a zone defense but junked it early in the contest and went into a man-for-man which proved to be the right tonic.

Kingston's next start is Friday at Poughkeepsie. The Pioneers walloped Ellenville, 96-69, and appear to be loaded.

Pioneers Breeze to 96-69 Win

Poughkeepsie High displayed tremendous early season power as it walloped Ellenville Central, 96-69, in its opener last night on the loser's floor in the DUSO League.

The Pioneers buried the Blue Devils under an avalanche of 5 field goals as they warmed up for their encounter with Kingston High Friday at the Bridge City.

Pat McKenna and Dick De Pew paced Coach Sam J. Kalloch's 'new look' aggregation with 22 and 21 points respectively.

Eugene (Deke) Johnson, of football fame, whipped in 15 and directed a fierce fast break attack. Wall caged 11 and Joe Molinaro, baseball pitching star, 10.

Ben Davis, 6-6 center, was the individual leader with 30 points. The rangy blond junior, who sat out the last game with a twisted ankle, fired 11 goals and 8 free throws in a losing cause. Teammate Charlie Kushner came through with 17, including 11-for-11 from the foul line.

The loss was the second against one victory for Coach Chuck Walsh's crew.

Port Jervis Wins Behind Osowick's 27

Playing only the first three quarters, Alex Osowick, Port Jervis High's brilliant center, scored 27 points to lead the Red Raiders to an easy 89-52 win over Fallsburgh in the DUSO League opener for both teams last night at Fallsburgh.

Osowick, who shattered almost every DUSO scoring record as a junior last year, picked up right where he left off. The 6-5 ace banged in 9 field goals and a like number of free tosses to spearhead the romp.

Joe Conroy, 6-4 forward, contributed 20 and Harry Boyd 12.

Skipper Carnesi hit for 12 and Abe Kaufman 10 for the Comets who absorbed their second loss of the campaign.

Port's Jayvees won just as easily, 73-29.

NC Tar Heels Stretch Winning Skein to 34

By DON WEISS
The Associated Press

The way those fellows from that rugged bed of basketball called the Atlantic Coast Conference cuff the big guys around, it's a wonder North Carolina's winning streak has gone as far as it has.

The ACC boys can do it out of the conference, as Maryland did against Kentucky Monday night. And they can do it to each other, witness previously winless Clemson's 63-59 victory over North Carolina State last night.

It's enough to make a coach glad he's away from home grounds now and then, as Frank McGuire's Tar Heels were in stretching their streak to 34 against George Washington, 86-59 in Washington, D. C.

Clemson, fired by Walt Gibbons' 21 points, whipped an N. C. State team that had won three straight, was ranked 12th nationally and figured as one of the chief ACC challengers to top-ranked North Carolina.

Kearns Hits 22

North Carolina, visiting to the North, had no such problems, building up a hefty lead and coasting against George Washington with seniors Tommy Kearns and Pete Brennan and soph Lee Shaffer combining for 62 points. Kearns, who had 32 in the Tar Heels' debut Saturday, hit for 22 this time, Brennan and Shaffer for 20 apiece.

Action was sparse elsewhere among the major schools.

Texas won its third straight 73-41 over McMurry. Dartmouth's win string went to three in a 75-50 decision over Vermont, and unbeaten St. Bonaventure, with Sam Stith hitting 16, whipped LeMoyne (NY) for the 13th straight time, 58-46.

The Citadel downed William & Mary, 85-63, and Chicago Loyola crushed South Dakota State 84-58. California went to two overtimes to fight off St. Marys (Calif), 67-57.

Liberty Rips NFA, 81-48, In Headliner

Racing to an early 14-1 lead, Liberty Central's powerful Redskins coasted to an 81-48 triumph over defending champion Newburgh Free Academy in a DUSO League tussle last night in the Sullivan County village.

It was believed to be the biggest margin ever recorded by the Redskins over a Newburgh team. The victory marked the third straight success for Liberty and boosted its stock in the league race.

Diminutive John Lawrence, Liberty's dynamic set shot artist, paced the romp with 25 points. Kevin Moloney, 6-6 center, chipped in with 22 and Jack Thompson 13.

NFA, which threw the ball away the first eight times it tried to pass, was led by LeRoy Riley, with 18. Dick LaGoy contributed 12.

Liberty sped to a 24-10 lead in the first quarter and hiked it to 40-20 at halftime. The three-quarter score read, 61-34.

JVs Score 38-33 Win Over MHS

Kingston High Jayvees kept pace with their bigger brothers by beating Middletown, 38-22, in a low-scoring contest last night.

Joe Uhl, 14-year-old freshmen, whipped in 13 to pace Coach Bill Hurley's junior Maroon. Walt Harder added 8.

The game was locked at 7-all at the first period break, but KHS forged ahead, 21-17, at halftime. The Middies spurted 12-7, in the third period and held forth at the three-quarter mark, 29-28. A 10-4 rally in the last canto sewed it up for Kingston.

A big factor in the low point total was the new six-minute quarters, which on the most part, doesn't give teams sufficient time to get untracked and find their shooting eye.

Kingston Chevrolets Open Cage Season at Poughkeepsie

If you're wondering about the dearth of news concerning heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, we're happy to announce he's still around. The champ was at McConnell's Rest a while back to visit with an old friend, Jack Bushell, who rooms there. He promised to come back in the near future.

Meanwhile, Manager Cus D'Amato rates straight A's for his accomplishments in keeping Floyd the most carefully sheltered and least publicized heavyweight king in years. After watching the recent Eddie Machen-Hurricane Jackson fiasco, we'e convinced Patterson can sleep a while longer.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Now that you mention it, Kingston High has done pretty well in the annual balloting for All-DUSO football Player of the Year. Three of the last four selections have been KHS stars—Gene Massa, Pete Blanschan and Marvin Engle. Charlie Johnson sneaked through for Poughkeepsie one year. . . . Boxing Bits: Ray Robinson has been offered $100,000 for his life story from a national magazine and has turned it down. He may change his mind if his demand of 150Gs is treated with indifference. . . . Frank Sinatra, harried by tumbling trendex with his Friday night TVer, is a little embarrassed by some of the unfavorable publicity from the boxing business and will put a stop to unbridled use of his name. . . . Cus D'Amato, who never was concerned with luxury, has switched since Floyd Patterson won the title, and now has a lush bachelor apartment on the West Side. . . . Steve Ellis, who bored metropolitan TV and radio audiences to death, is clicking as a Miami TV sportscaster. . . . Jess Willard, the heavyweight champion dethroned by Jack Dempsey, was 76 on Nov. 29. . . . Archie Moore celebrated his birthday Nov. 13. Which one.

• Praise From Caesar:

Stan Hemingway, football coach at Newburgh Free Academy, expressed high regard for the calibre of the 1957 All-DUSO selections. "I think it was the best team picked in many years," Hemingway told Bo Gill. . . . Harlem Stars, featuring the incomparable Goose Tatum, will play for the Newburgh PONY League on Feb. 17. . . . Bill Stewart, retired dean of National League umpires, who addresses the Mid-Hudson Traffic Club tonight, worked in 715 successive games from August, 1933, until September of 1938 when he was stricken with appendicitis. Dale Memmelaar, of Goshen, starting tackle on the University of Wyoming grid team, was named captain of the 1958 football team. Memmelaar, a 211-pound tackle, is rated as one of the most agile of the Skyline Conference's linemen. . . . Bud Kerr, the Newburgh gridder who never attended Newburgh Academy but won All-American honors at Notre Dame in 1939, is doing a good job of coaching at Dayton University. . . . Pine Bush Central School has been admitted as the seventh member of the Orange County Football League.

• Of Men and Mice:

A non-hunter declares that many hunters can't distinguish between a buck and a doe, accounting for the needless slaughter of does and fawns in the off-season. He says the compulsory use of a 4-power scope on hunting rifles might be the solution. He would make them mandatory, claiming the average open scopes leave much to be desired. . . . Marques Haynes and the Harlem Magicians are at the Troy Armory Saturday night. . . . STEVE BELICHICK, assistant coach at Navy, found out the club had a happy-go-lucky way about it right off the bat this season. In giving the club a scouting report before the California game, Belichick droned about strategy and formation, then swung to the Bears' personnel. "The second string quarterback—and remember this now—is ambidextrous," he said. A player in the back of the room smirked and head coach Eddie Erdelatz cut in. "Do you know what the word means?" he said, sternly. "Yes sir," the kid answered. "It means he runs with both feet."

Hint Dougherty Headed for Texas

ROCHESTER (AP) — Coach Duffy Daugherty of the Michigan State football team was expected to say today whether or not he intends to take the coaching job at Texas A&M.

Daugherty left Rochester after a speaking engagement last night, reportedly to meet Clarence (Big gie) Munn, State's athletic director, in Chicago today.

Earlier yesterday, he told the Chicago Daily News that he was reluctant to discuss the possible job switch because "it would be proper for me to wait on them (Texas A&M) to make any announcement."

Steel-tipped football cleats made of tough rubber have been introduced by a Houston, Tex., manufacturer.

Home Opener Carded Sunday At Auditorium

Kingston's newest independent basketball team—the Chevrolets — launch their Hudson Valley League season with a pair of games this week.

Thursday night the Fred Davi-operated quintet plays its first game against the Poughkeepsie-Staatsburg combine at the new Poughkeepsie High school gym.

The Kingston opener is scheduled Sunday night at 8 o'clock against the Middletown Royals at the municipal auditorium.

The six teams making up the Hudson Valley League's first season are Kingston, Stewart Field (Newburgh), Pine Plains Bombardiers, Fishkill, Middletown and Poughkeepsie-Staatsburg.

Fred Davi, the Kingston Colonial baseball promoter, is in charge of the local franchise. Robert (Red) Murray Jr., is the coach. Byrne Chevrolets has furnished the uniforms which will be in a blue and white scheme.

A Dream Team

A dream team in many respects, the Chevrolets will feature every local player of note, including Ronnie Scheffel, ex-Kingston High and North Carolina State wizard, who will be available for the entire season, if he finds local employment. Ronnie was recently discharged from the Army.

Others on the Kingston roster are Frank (Yip) Koenig, who starred at Siena; Big Andy Juhl, Big Bill Knott, Buddy Smith, the Saugerties High School coach; George Carpouzis, Tony Grimaldi, Palmer (Skip) Brodhead, Bill Dubois, Al Long, Dick Terlingen and Lafayette (Champ) Holstein.

The first phase of the season will consist of 12 games, after which the top four teams will engage in a Shaughnessy playoff. Three doubleheaders are scheduled in Kingston, with the powerful Pine Plains Bombardiers appearing each time. Manager Davi said there is a possibility of more twinbills.

Eagle Change

Ready Axe For Devore

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Philadelphia Eagles will unload head coach Hugh Devore at the end of this National Football League season, The Associated Press learned yesterday.

A reliable source said Devore would be paid off for the final year of his three-year contract. The club reportedly will try to get the affable former Notre Dame star and coach to resign; but it he refuses, it will be the ax.

Devore, father of seven children, said "There has been no intimation by anyone in the front office of an impending change. I do not intend to resign. I never have considered such a move."

Devore was signed to a three-year contract in January, 1956 after Jim Trimble was dismissed as head coach. Last season, his first at the helm, the Eagles won 3, lost 8, tied 1, and finished last in the NFL's Eastern Conference. This year, with one more game to play, the Birds are 4-7.

Vince McNally, general manager, already has drawn up a list of possible successors, including Jim Tatum, North Carolina mentor; Buck Shaw of the U. S. Air Force Academy, and Wally Butts of Georgia.

Carter, Notaro Pace All Star Chicago Bowling

CHICAGO (AP)—A seasoned pro from St. Louis and an unknown from Brant, N. Y., took the leads as the finals of the first World's Invitational Bowling Tournament moved into their second day today at the Chicago Coliseum.

The pro, Don Carter of St. Louis, three time all-star tournament winner and currently bowler-of-the-year, averaged 230 for his last eight games to take a commanding lead in the field of 16 men finalists.

After 16 games of a scheduled 64 in the finals, the 29-year-old Carter had 81.31 Petersen points, while former all-star champion, Bill Lillard of Chicago, was second with 78.21. Third was former Cleveland star, Johnny King, who now bowls out of Chicago. King has 76.30 points.

New York Kegler

The unknown is a pert 29-year-old brunette, Miss Phyllis Notaro who lives in Brant, a suburb of Buffalo, N. Y.

Miss Notaro had only a slender lead in the Women's Division, with four women bunched within 33 pins. They include Miss Notaro with 37.49 Petersen points; six time All-Star Champion Marion Ladewig of Grand Rapids, Mich., with 37.26; Arlene Eck, a housewife from St. Paul, Minn., at 37.19, and Chiyo Tashima, a housewife from Los Angeles, with 37.16 points.

Jim Pace of Michigan led the Big Ten in football scoring with 54 points during the 1957 season. He also led in rushing with 584 yards on 100 carries.

Legislators Back Minors on TV

ROCHESTER (AP) — The minor leagues' fight to prevent the majors from extending television coverage of baseball games to Sunday has the backing of two powerful congressmen—one from each party.

Rep. Kenneth B. Keating (R-NY) said last night he and Rep. Emmanuel Celler (D-NY) would take the minors' case personally to the U. S. attorney general.

Celler is chairman of the House Judiciary Committee. Keating is the committee's senior Republican.

The minors fear the proposed plan would cut deeply into their receipts, Sunday dates being the most lucrative in the minors.

Hoyt Ammidon of Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., plays hockey and lacrosse for Yale.

Dempsey Also Honored

Writers Name Basilio 1957 Fighter of Year

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Jack Dempsey and Carmen Basilio, two bright and shiny names in boxing, will receive the sport's top awards for 1957.

Dempsey was voted the James J. Walker Memorial Award for "long and meritorious service" by the Boxing Writers Association at its meeting yesterday. Basilio was named winner of the Edward J. Neil Memorial Plaque as "Fighter of the Year."

The two fighting men will accept the honors Jan. 14 at the association's annual New York dinner.

Dempsey, now 62, held the heavyweight title from 1919 to 1926. Winner of the first Neil award in 1938, Dempsey has been active in the sport as a referee, promoter and sponsor of many heavyweights.

Whipped Robinson

Basilio, the man who moved from welter crown to the middleweight title by winning a split decision over Sugar Ray Robinson Sept. 23 at Yankee Stadium, is one of the most popular fighters in the ring today.

The 30-year-old slugger from the onion lands of Upstate New York is the first boxer to win the Neil trophy twice. He was first honored in 1955 after he won the welter crown from Tony DeMarco.

The Neil trophy is boxing's most prized award. It is presented annually to the fighter of the year or the man who did the most to advance the sport during the year. It is named in memory of the former Associated Press boxing writer who was killed in 1938 while serving as a war correspondent in Spain.

The Walker award was won by Frank Graham, veteran sports writer of the New York Journal American in 1956 and the Neil plaque went to Heavyweight Champion Floyd Patterson.

Broke Precedent

The writers broke precedent in giving the Neil award to Basilio for the second time. He is the first repeater in the long line leading back to 1938. Although active boxers normally win it, Jimmy Walker was the 1945 recipient.

Basilio defended his welter crown in sensational fashion Feb. 22 by knocking out former champ Johnny Saxton in the second round at Cleveland. His battle with Robinson was a thrilling contest for 15 gruelling rounds, watched by 38,073 at Yankee Stadium and many more on theater-television.

Robinson still is debating the advisability of accepting a rematch with Basilio that could be "the fight" of 1958.

Ned Brown, veteran boxing writer, was elected president of the writers assn. at the annual meeting. Nat Fleischer, the longtime president and editor of Ring Magazine, declined another term, but accepted the office of secretary-treasurer.

College Grid Gate Drops

By The Associated Press

College football attendance dropped a bit in 1957 because (1) of television, (2) of low-scoring, ball-control tactics, (3) it's harder to get a spare buck these days, and (4) people have more ways to entertain themselves or be entertained than they used to.

The decline was rather small—1:41 per cent of the average at major colleges surveyed by The Associated Press. But that decline, in view of large enrollments and alumni bodies, was significant enough for the inclusion in the AP post-season questionnaire of a question about the reasons for the drop.

While TV, both the Saturday afternoon college variety and the Sunday afternoon pro games, was listed as the No. 1 reason, the replies brought some strong comments about "dull" split T, ball-control football.

One writer described it as resembling "22 men in a big crap game."

While a dozen of about 60 writers and broadcasters replying to the questionnaire gave ball control as the No. 1 reason for crowd decreases, 20 said television was the principal reason and several others gave that as a secondary cause.

At least 10 mentioned the high cost of "live" football and tighter economic conditions.

Combined with these were the other forms of weekend entertainment available — including TV, other spectator and participant sports and even the do-it-yourself habit.

Wagner Sees New Major Franchise Possible in N. Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Wagner's baseball committee feels "reasonably confident" if can woo an existing National League franchise to New York if:

1. Commissioner Ford Frick will help the NL to keep its territorial rights here.

2. The New York Yankees don't press too hard to keep the metropolitan area solely for the American League,

3. Park Commissioner Robert Moses, the man with the ways and means, will throw in his support in a stadium project.

The "existing franchise" mentioned by the committee in a telegram to Frick was not identified, although Cincinnati and Chicago have been mentioned in the past and Pittsburgh has been cropping up in more recent rumors.

William Shea, chairman of the four-man committee named by the mayor to bring a NL club to New York after the Dodgers and Giants fled to the West Coast, revealed yesterday that the group already is studying stadium plans.

Pirates Sign Coast Player

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 10 (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates today signed Lawrence L. Elliot, 19, of San Diego, Calif., to a 1958 contract with their Hollywood farm of the Pacific Coast League. Elliot plays first base, the outfield and pitches. He throws and bats left-handed.

Dick Christy of North Carolina State carried the ball 348 times during his varsity football career. He gained a net of 1,817 yards.

4 Celtics Among Top 12 Scorers

NEW YORK (AP) — The Boston Celtics, beaten in only two of 21 games they've played in the National Basketball Assn., have fashioned their runaway with a balanced scoring attack no other club in the league comes close to matching.

Weekly statistics from NBA headquarters list four members of the Celts' starting five among the league's top 12 scorers. The only starter missing is Bob Cousy, a consistent high scorer when he's physically able. Cousy, however, shows only an 11-point average so far because he has been limited to part-time service by a leg injury.

The other starters are doing the job game in and out, with Bill Sharman leading the way with 520 points for a 24.8 average, third best in the league. Bill Russell ranks seventh with a 19.7 average, Frank Ramsey eighth with 18.4 and Tom Heinsohn 12th with 17.6.

No other team has more than two representatives among the leading scorers.

George Yardley of Detroit remains the pacesetter with 601 points in 21 games for a 28.6 leading scorers.

George Yardley of Detroit remains the pacesetter with 601 points in 21 games for a 28.6 average. Bob Pettit of St. Louis follows with 542 points in 21 starts for a 25.8 average.

Marshall, Bower Head Ice Loop

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Marshall of Hershey continued his reign as the No. 1 scorer in American Hockey League play last week while goalie Johnny Bower came up with a record defensive performance that kept Cleveland second behind the Bears in the standings.

Marshall picked up only four points in three games while Bill Sweeney of Providence added three in a single contest, but the Hershey hustler still has a four-point edge over the runner-up. Marshall leads in goals with 18 and has added 20 assists for a total of 38 points. Sweeney has scored 14 goals, plus 20 assist, for 34 point.

Fred Glover of Cleveland is tops in assists with 21.

Bower lowered his leading goals against average to 2.24, permitting 56 in 25 games while setting a record with 249 minutes, 51 seconds of shutout tending. He ran up three consecutive shutouts in the spurt, boosting his career total to 42, tops in AHL history. He has five for the season.

NEW YORK (NEA)—Becoming the first person not a Swedish citizen to be so honored, Richard S. Nye was presented with the Helmsman Medal of the Royal Swedish Yacht Club. Nye had an outstanding racing record.

RPI End Named To All Star 11

NEW YORK (AP) — Tufts placed two men, halfback Paul Abrahamian and tackle George Kurker, on the 1957 All-Northern Division Small College Football Team named today by the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

Tufts, with a 6-1-1 record, was the only school to contribute two players to the squad. Kurker, a 240-pound senior from Medford, Mass., is a repeater from the 1956 team. Abrahamian, also a senior, is from Somerville, Mass.

The rest of the squad, selected on the basis of the weekly ECAC teams picked during the season:

ENDS — Dave Stephens, Amherst; Ronald Brown, RPI.

TACKLE—Frank Woidzik, Buffalo.

GUARDS—Lou Mooradian, Connecticut; Jim Gerlach, Rhode Island.

CENTER—Jim Sellars, Cortland State.

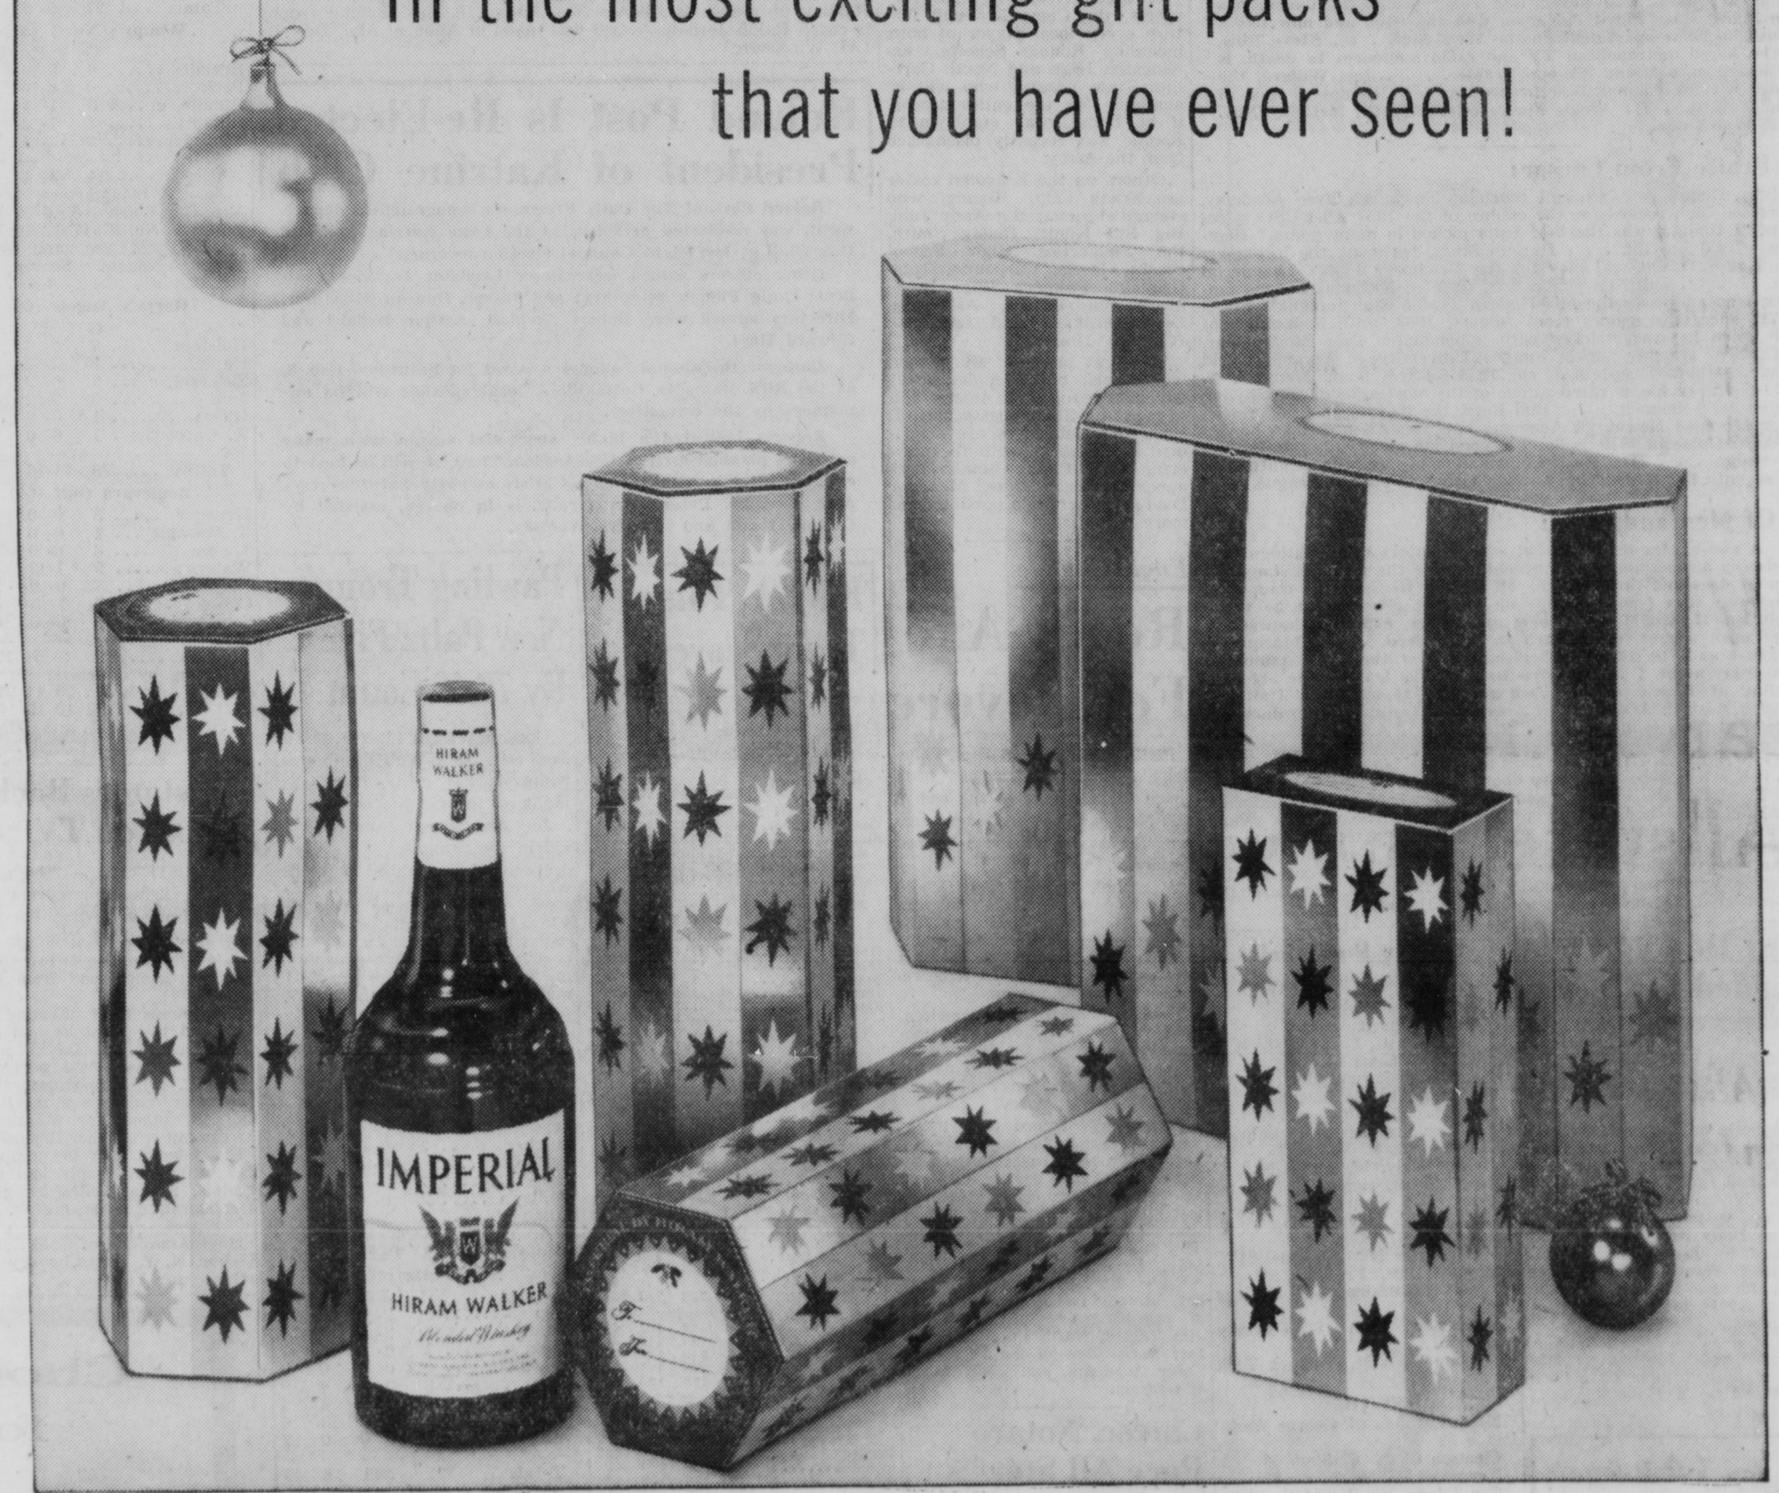

BACKS — Les Plumb, Springfield; Chip Ide, Williams; Maurice Stein, Brandeis.

All are seniors except Ide and Sellars, both juniors.

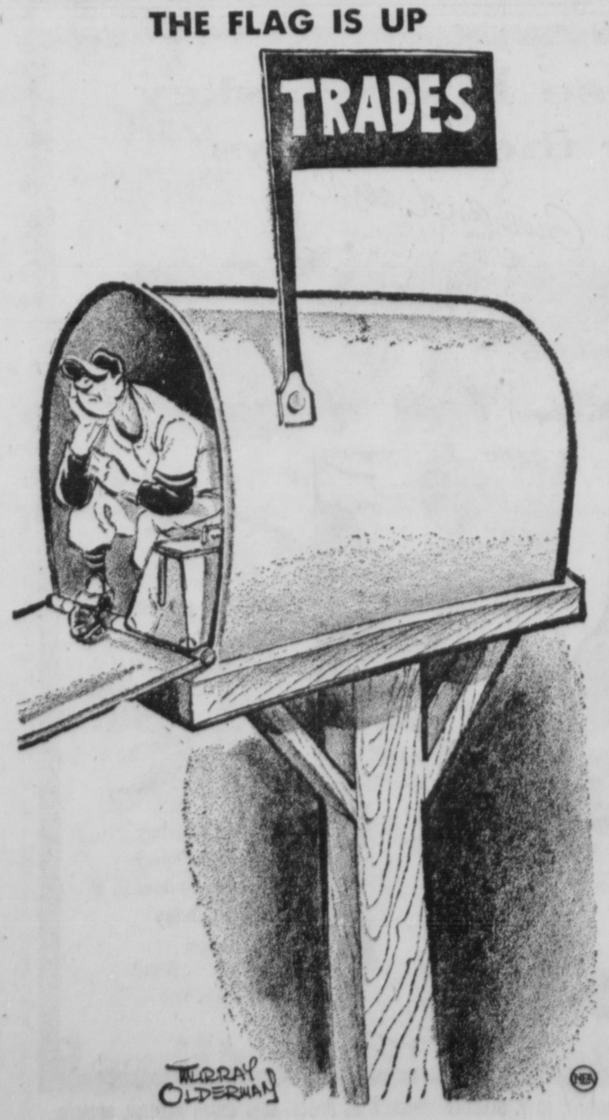

Mikes, Rigney on North

MIAMI, Dec. 10 (AP) — Two more Big Ten stars, Kenny Mikes, a Purdue halfback, and Frank Rigney, an Iowa tackle, were signed today to join the North team that will meet the South in Miami's Shrine charity football game Christmas night.

Mighty - Mite Holds Own on Panther Quintet

PITTSBURGH (AP)—In this day of the outsized basketball player, sharp - shooting Don Hennon of Pitt more than holds his own at 5 feet 8½.

Don isn't really small by average standards. He only seems little on the basketball floor weaving around towering opponents.

Hennon's 180 pounds are carried on a frame that gives him the chunky appearance of a fast guard on a football team.

Hennon of Wampum, Pa., led the Panthers in scoring last season as a sophomore when they chalked up a mediocre 16-11 record. He tossed in 573 points, 160 more than any other Pitt player, hitting on 41 per cent of his field goal attempts and 82 per cent of his free throws.

In the process he set two school records. He tossed in 17 field goals against North Carolina State for the most field goals in one game and hit the basket 225 times for the most field goals in one season.

He's off to a good start again this year. In two games he has dropped in 25 field goals and 14 free throws for a total of 64 and an average of 32.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

By AL McCLANE
Fishing Editor

A NYMPH is one of the superior divinities of a trout stream.

These aquatic larvae range from a half-inch to three inches long and are so numerous in rivers of the world that the annual diet of a trout is generally estimated at about 80 per cent nymphs and the balance minnows.

Fishermen using artifical nymphs can catch trout every day of the season, including the winter months wherever legal.

Upstream casting is by far the more efficient way to work a nymph.

The business on hand is to put the nymph in places where the trout are likely to feed—against grassy banks and around boulders and logs in the slick pockets of fast water.

As the current sweeps the nymph back, raise your rod tip slightly and strip in the line in loose coils with your free hand, keeping the line free from drag.

Soft Materials Best

All you need do to make certain of setting the hook on a fast-striking fish is to keep the line between the fingers of your rod hand, rather than stripping line directly from the guides.

When a fish takes, you can tighten on him instanly.

Your best bet in the matter of pattern is in making certain that the nymphs are made of absorbent materials—soft hen hackles and furs—and never too fully tied.

The activity of an imitation nymph in the water is dependent on whatever motion the current can give to the materials. Soft feather legs will "flutter" without too much rod work.

The early season angler will find good use for weighted nymphs, particularly when there's a strong head of water flowing.

Bonnies Stretch Streak to 13 Over Le Moyne

By The Associated Press

A second-half surge of St. Bonaventure power downed a scrappy Le Moyne basketball quintet 58-46 last night at Olean.

The victory was the Bonnies' 13th in a row over Le Moyne and also stretched their current undefeated string to three games.

At Alfred, the University of Buffalo's Dick Dompkowski and Joe Tontillo connected on six foul shots between them in the last minute of play, and pushed Buffalo to a 57-56 victory, its first of the season.

In other college games upstate, Potsdam felled Utica 87-84, Oneonta beat Harpur 63-51, Brockport defeated Fredonia 83-58, and Buffalo Teachers downed McMaster 91-61.

At Olean, Le Moyne pulled ahead three times in the first half, but never by more than three points At one point in the second half, St. Bonaventure led 48-28.

At Alfred, the home club led 52-51 with 57 seconds to go. Then Dompkowski's four foul shots and Tontillo's two won it for Buffalo, which had lost its first three contests.

Durelle 7-5 Pick To Whip Luedee

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Freeswinging Jerry Luedee, a tree surgeon when he's not boxing, will try to cut Yvon Durelle down tonight in a light heavyweight fight.

Durelle, the British Empire light heavy champion, is a 7-5 favorite however, on the basis of a split decision over Luedee a year ago, a fine showing in a draw with highly regarded Tony Anthony, and greater experience.

The 28-year-old Durelle, a rough and tough ringsman, is aiming for a match with Champion Archie Moore and will be out for an impressive decision over Luedee.

Luedee, 24, of New Haven, Conn., figures he is on the way up and is determined, not to let the Canadian fisherman throw a block in his path. He has been fighting professionally only four years and has a 30-6-1 record, with 15 knockout victories.

The bout, scheduled for 10 rounds, will be televised nationally (ABC at 10 p. m.). It is part of a benefit program for the Babe Zaharias Memorial Cancer Fund.

Knicks Flatten Celts 2nd Time

The New York Knickerbockers haven't really set the world on fire this year in the National Basketball Assn., but to the Boston Celtics they're "too hot to handle."

The Knicks handed the Celts their third loss of the season, against 19 wins last night. It was the second time the New Yorkers turned the trick in four games with the Celts. The Knicks won 106-103 in the second game of a Madison Square Garden doubleheader, after the St. Louis Hawks bounced the Cincinnati Royals 102-90 in the opener.

At Detroit, the Syracuse Chiefs hung it on the Minneapolis Lakers 114-104 and the Philadelphia Warriors beat the Detroit Pistons 109-97, also in a doubleheader. These were the only games scheduled.

Subway Strike Is Growing Worse

NEW YORK (AP) — Bedraggled Manhattan workers who live outside the borough wearily climbed out of bed earlier than ever today in a grim effort to beat growing difficulties in the city's worst transit strike.

But as the 7 a. m. to 9 a. m. rush hour hit its peak, the travel jams seemed as bad as yesterday and the day before—if not worse.

Transit officials managed to keep perhaps a third of the subway trains running, using nonstrikers and supervisory personnel in place of members of the Motormen's Benevolent Assn. who struck at 5 a. m. Monday.

Terrific Strain

Both city and private bus lines, as well as commuter railroads, sought to help ease the maddening travel plight by marshalling all extra equipment possible.

But it was a terrific strain all around, because all such facilities ordinarily operate at just about capacity even with subways running normally.

It promised to be another hectic day of jammed highways, station platforms and frantic struggles of harried commuters seeking to force their way aboard anything moving in the direction of Manhattan.

An official of the striking union claimed the walkout was more effective than the two previous days. There was some evidence to back him up.

510 Stay Away

Subway officials said that of 809 motormen scheduled to work the midnight to 7 a. m. shift on the city's three subway divisions only 299 appeared.

In Brooklyn, where a number of bus lines are operated by the same agency which handles the subways, 500 maintenance workers failed to appear. However, drivers were reported continuing work as usual. Yesterday, 300 maintenance men did not work.

The first violence was recorded early today when a lead pipe was tossed through a window of a subway train, apparently aimed at the nonstriking motorman in the front of the first car. Instead, it shattered the window behind him and hit a passenger on the elbow.

The striking MBA men, who called their walkout in a jurisdictional dispute over union representation in the subway system, doggedly stuck to their refusal to work despite pleas from the governor and mayor, and threats of firing from the city's Transit Authority.

Backing the Transit Authority, Mayor Robert F. Wagner warned the strikers yesterday that they were causing great economic hardships to the city as well as jeopardizing their own incomes and security. The subways handle more than 4½ million fares daily.

He said he felt that few realized they are breaking the law. State law imposes dismissal or severe penalties on civil service workers who strike against government agencies.

Gov. Harriman also urged the strikers to return to work.

The MBA, backed by six other craft unions, is seeking to break out from a systemwide labor contract with Michael J. Quill's Transport Workers Union.

The united front of craft groups claims a membership of more than 16,000 of the city's 31,917 hourly rated employes. They include towermen, signalmen, conductors, maintenance workers and shop personnel.

Turn for the Worse

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Safety first didn't pay for Rudy Vrba of St. Clairsville. Vrba extended his arm to signal a left turn while driving along Ohio 7—and had four fingers broken by a bat wielding youngster who leaned out of an auto traveling in the opposite direction.

It takes a GIANT to feed a family of 170,500,000

Getting food to 170,500,000 people in over 49,500,000 U. S. households is a job of giant proportions. Yet the country's 401,000 grocery retailers, large and small, do it every day . . . and do it so effectively and in such volume, that we are the best fed people on earth.

Your local food store operator's never-ending search for new and better ways to fill your market basket is one reason why you enjoy the best, the freshest food possible at the lowest possible price.

It's also the reason why grocery retailers spend more money in newspapers than in any other advertising medium . . . well over $162,000,000 in 1956. They have found that the daily newspaper is the most effective and efficient way to keep you informed of products and prices.

To satisfy a hunger for news of people, places and products, people buy over 58,000,000 brand new, freshly made copies of the daily newspaper every day. Because the newspaper is the natural, logical place for America to shop, it's the natural, logical place to advertise.

If you have anything to sell, make sure it's seen. More people will see it in the daily newspaper than anywhere else.

All business is local...and so are all newspapers.

Tale of the Tub

YORK, Pa. (AP)—Max V. Pickel Jr., a fifth grader contributed this newsworth item to a column for school children in the York Dispatch. After relating that he and his father spent the day flying model airplanes, Max reported: "When we came home it was time to go to evening church. My mother made me take a bath. But when I was done, it was too late to go to church. So I had taken a bath for nothing."

THE BEAR TRUTH—Occupying the "seat" of honor, Teddy the bear keeps a close check on the situation at a farewell review given for him by U.S. troops in Berlin, Germany. The playful nine-month-old cub, who was the mascot of the soldiers, was ordered transferred to the Washington National Zoo after he nipped the first sergeant and went AWOL

HAVANA KID — Sandy, two-year-old Pekingese owned by Dickie Lunsford, Springfield, Tenn., doesn't smoke cigars but likes to eat them. He doesn't get sick "unless he eats too many."

Report Ike Cool To Soviet Note

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower was expected today to brush aside a 3,000-word letter from Soviet Premier Bulganin. The Russians called the letter "very important" and American officials dismissed it as propaganda.

The message was reported to renew old Soviet proposals to end nuclear bomb tests and to hold a high level east-west conference to outlaw war.

The 15-page document, handed the State Department yesterday, apparently contained no new proposals. Its timing was significant, though, since it came just as Eisenhower prepared to go to the North Atlantic Pact (NATO) summit conference opening Monday at Paris.

Soviet Ambassador Georgi Zarubin called the letter "very important" when he talked to reporters after delivering it. But American officials said it was designed to undercut the NATO meeting and to block any attempt to arm America's European allies with nuclear-tipped missiles.

The State Department withheld formal comment until the letter could be translated and dissected by experts.

It was learned, meanwhile, that these were its main proposals:

1. A halt after Jan. 1 to all nuclear bomb testing. The western allies already have rejected this, saying it fails to get at the core of the problem: ' ban on A-bomb and H-bomb production with safeguards to prevent cheating. Besides, the allies want to keep testing for a "clean" H-bomb and small tactical A-bombs.

Asks East-West Parley

2. An east-west "conference of leaders" to outlaw war. This, too, has been turned down. The allies' argument is that showy summit conferences or foreign ministers meetings never get down to brass tacks. The west argues that the best way to prevent war is to ease tensions by settling the nettling differences one by one at lower-level undramatic talks.

3. A prohibition on producing or stockpiling nuclear weapons in Communist Poland and East and West Germany. This idea was first put forward by Poland at the United Nations last Oct. 2. Nothing came of it. Two weeks earlier Russia had threatened to arm its satellites with nuclear weapons if West Germany got them.

4. The usual Soviet pitch about normalizing world relations and increasing east-west trade. Here again the allies take the position that such generalizations are worthless unless the Soviets are willing to deal with specifics.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany got a personal letter from Bulganin, too, as did India's Prime Minister Nehru. Officials here speculated that Bulganin's was a "round-robin" message to the NATO government chiefs and possibly to others like Nehru outside NATO.

Meeting Is Held To Alert U.S. On Red Threat

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Herald Tribune said today a high-level, non-partisan meeting of eminent citizens met in Washington privately Monday night to explore new ways to alert the American people to the threat posed by the Soviet Union.

In a Washington dispatch, the newspaper said Vice President Nixon attended the meeting.

The paper added:

Several of those present at the meeting urged that the administration release some details of a survey completed recently of Russia's military and technological advances.

Fourteen persons attended the dinner meeting at the home of William C. Foster, foreign aid administrator and deputy secretary of defense under former President Truman.

Others present were aul H. Nitze, former chairman of the State Department's policy planning staff; Roswell L. Gilpatric, former Air Force under secretary; Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System; John Cowles, publisher of the Cowles newspapers; Laurence S. Rockefeller; Elmo Roper, public opinion expert; Franklin A. Lindsay, New York management consultant, and several others.

The group's purpose is to lay before "leadership groups" about the country "the harsher facts of America's position in the world and foster a far greater awareness of the Soviet challenge than appears to exist today."

Must Restrain Kisses

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Coeds at Purdue University's Shealy Hall had orders today to limit goodnight kisses on dates to one, keep it as short as possible and display "little or no emotion."

The "new college social order" announced by Shealy's head resident, Miss Valerie Heavey, put a limit on kissing and recommended handshaking instead. Violations will bring summons before "board of standards for coeds."

Wintry Weather Is Due Next Five Days

ALBANY (AP) — The extended weather forecasts for New York State, prepared by the U. S. Weather Bureau, for the period from 7 p. m. today to 7 p. m. Monday:

Eastern New York—Cold, wintry weather throughout the period with temperatures averaging 6 or 8 degrees below normal. Very cold at the beginning and colder again by Sunday, with some moderation Friday and Saturday. Snow flurries generally and snow squalls southeast of Lake Ontario at the beginning. Some light snow likely Friday night or Saturday followed by snow flurries mostly west and north portions over the weekend. Total precipitation generally light and water content one-quarter inch or less.

Western New York — Wintry weather is indicated with temperatures averaging 5 or 6 degrees below normal. Snow flurries and heavy snow squalls east ends of lakes Erie and Ontario Thursday, ending with moderating temperatures Friday, some light snow or rain over the weekend, turning colder with snow flurries about Monday. An average of less than one-half inch of melted precipitation is expected.

Temperature normals—Normal temperatures over Upstate New York now range from early morning lows between 17 and 25, to afternoon highs from 34 to 40.

Meets on Missiles

PARIS (AP)—NATO's top-ranking military committee met today to consider the need for missile weapons to defend western Europe.

The committee's secret session is a preliminary to the summit talks next week.

The military committee, made up of the senior military officer from each NATO power, annually reviews the military problems of the alliance. NATO's supreme commander, U. S. Gen. Lauris Norstad, heads the group.

Offer Dutch Ships

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—A government spokesman indicated today that Communist Poland and Yugoslavia have offered to help meet the shipping shortage left by Indonesian seizure of Dutch ships.

The government was reported considering Polish and Yugoslav steamship line offers to maintain regular shipping routes between Europe and Indonesia. Their vessels would replace Dutch ships pulled from Indonesian waters.

More than 50 ships of the Dutch-owned KPM line are idle in Indonesian harbors under guard by Communist-led labor unionists.

his long record of service.

Gets Gift Book

Foreman Orvel Kimbark of the Wiltwyck volunteers presented Dunne with a book, a gift of Frederic Snyder, author and lecturer, and a close friend, who was unable to attend. The book was signed by everyone at the dinner.

A floral plant was presented to Mrs. Dunne by Rodney DuBois, treasurer.

A wrist watch was presented to Dunne by Richard Ruth Sr., vice president.

Former Mayor William F. Edelmuth, a past president of Wiltwyck, who was guest speaker, lauded Dunne's 50-year record as a volunteer fireman and officer of the company.

Officer 49 Years

Dunne, who joined the Wiltwyck company in 1907 and has served as an officer for 49 of his 50 years membership in various capacities, expressed his appreciation for the dinner which, he noted, "came as a complete surprise and is the first time you have put anything over on me."

Charles Higgins was chairman of the dinner committee.

St. John . . .

missioner Arthur Reuter listed six Apalachin visitors on whom checks are being made with the aid of several district attorneys.

Under Fire

They are Salvatore Falcone, of Utica, reportedly now living in Florida; Patsy Sciortino, of Auburn; Samuel Legattata, of Buffalo; Emmanuel Zicari, of Endicott; Carl Gambino, of Brooklyn, and Dominick D'Agostino, of Niagara Falls.

Reuter said yesterday Falcone, Sciortino and D'Agostino still have gun permits. He said he has written to district attorneys asking investigations with a view toward revoking the permits.

Earlier police had lifted gun permits held by Joseph Magliocco and Joseph Profaci, also visitors to the Apalachin meeting.

Lose Own Permits

Four men who helped get pistol permits for two Apalachin delegates lost their own permits yesterday. The four are Thomas Mezzasalma, a beverage company salesman; Frank Renaldi and Philip Zaccaro, real estate dealers; and Gaetano Muccelli, a pharmacist. Zaccaro lives in Queens, the three others in Brooklyn.

They served as character witnesses so Magliocco and Profaci could get their permits.

Hear Genovese

A grand jury at Trenton, N. J., yesterday heard testimony from Vito Genovese, reputed top man in the rackets. Genovese was described as "much more cooperative" than when he appeared before the grand jury a week ago.

Besides Genovese, the grand jury also heard testimony from Frank T. Majuri, of Elizabeth, N. J., and Louis A. Larasso, of Linden, N. J., who also attended the Apalachin conference.

To Return Tuesday

Both were described as very uncooperative and are scheduled to reappear next Tuesday.

Sgt. Edgar Croswell, the New York State policeman whose raiders broke up the Apalachin meeting, also was a witness before the Trenton grand jury. He said he merely described the raid.

Meanwhile, a State Liquor Authority hearing for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Falcone of Utica was postponed until Dec. 16 and moved from New York to Utica because of the illness of Mrs. Falcone.

The authority is investigating the license of a liquor store managed by Falcone, who police said attended the Apalachin meeting, and his wife.

night, adding to the slippery highway conditions, which have claimed two lives in the last two days.

Capital Area Hit

In the Capital area, tree limbs broken under a load of ice and a series of small power breaks kept police and power crews busy.

Frederick McDermott Jr., 25, a railroad baggage handler, was injured fatally when his automobile skidded on an ice-coated Albany street and struck a tree.

A spokesman for a power company said that Albany, Troy, Hoosick Falls and some parts of Columbia County were hit hardest by the breaks but that there was "nothing real serious."

Temporary blackouts were reported in a few small communities and street lights in several Albany streets were out for a short time.

Port Voters Beat School Bond Issue

PORT JERVIS (AP)—Voters here yesterday rejected by a vote of 1,726 to 990 a $4,500,000 bond issue for the construction of four new elementary schools and a new high school.

A $3,000,000 school bond issue was voted down in 1955.

More Publicity Is Promised for Troopers' Exams

ALBANY (AP)—New York state police promise more publicity of examinations for prospective troopers to "insure notice to Negroes as well as all others."

There are no Negroes among the 1,400 state troopers, although two Negroes have served.

Next Test Jan. 11

The next examination is scheduled for Jan. 11.

Racial discrimination charges against the force were dismissed yesterday by the State Commission Against Discrimination but the agency's commissioner, J. Edward Conway, recommended intensified publicity to broaden the base of state police recruiting.

SCAD found state police acted properly in rejecting three Negro applicants, Charles M. Cooper of Yonkers, Albert L. Clark of Brooklyn and Alvaro L. Dalton of Manhattan.

Conway conducted a seven-month investigation of discrimination charges brought by the three men.

Conway's Advice

The commissioner, in his report, recommended the increased publicity so that "more candidates of all races, colors, creeds and national origins will compete."

State police contended the lack of Negro personnel in the division was because they had very few Negro applicants, the report said.

Francis J. McGarvey, state police superintendent, agreed "to take positive action to correct this situation, and, through broader publicity, to insure notice to Negroes as well as all others prior to the conduct of the next examination," Conway said.

Stewart Airman Killed in Crash With Milk Truck

An airman 2/c stationed at Stewart Air Force Base, Newburgh, was killed early this morning when a car in which he was riding was in collision with a milk truck on Route 9W in the Town of Esopus.

He is Joseph E. Diffin, 27, a resident of 28 McKibbin Street, Brooklyn.

Three other persons were treated at Vassar Brothers Hospital, Poughkeepsie, and released.

Diffin, a member of the 329th Consolidated Aircraft Maintenance Squadron, was pronounced dead at the scene by a Vassar Brothers Hospital physician.

Apparently Skidded

Highland state police said the collision involved a 1956 tractor-trailer owned by the Turca Milk Co. of Kingston, operated by William B. Trumble, 59, of 96 Washington Avenue, Saugerties, and a 1957 sedan owned by Luis Aparichio of Chicago, Ill., and operated by Manuel A. Llorente, 20, of the Bronx, also stationed at Stewart Air Force Base.

Troopers T. J. Crowley and Robert Van Alstyne reported that the milk truck was proceeding north in the West Park section when the sedan, traveling south, apparently went into a skid.

Double Impact

They said the operator of the milk truck told them the car crossed into the northbound lane, striking the truck with its left rear, then spinning counterclockwise and hitting the truck again with its right rear, coming to rest facing north in the middle of the highway.

Llorente suffered lacerations of the chin and knees and a possible concussion.

A passenger in the sedan, Roger Sprague, 19, of Grand Lake Stream, Me., also stationed at Stewart Air Force Base, received head lacerations.

Coroner Francis J. McCardle of Kingston was notified and proceeded to the scene, removing the body temporarily to the McCardle Funeral Home, 99 Henry Street. The body was scheduled to be removed today by the mortuary division of Stewart AFB.

Served in Korea

Diffin had been in the air force since about 1950 and was a veteran of the Korean Conflict.

He was an aircraft mechanic for jet airplanes.

Surviving is his father, John M. Diffin, and a sister, Mildred H. Diffin, both of Brooklyn.

Funeral arrangements were still pending this morning.

Time of the collision was listed by state police as 3:15 a. m.

Ulster Will Get $14,701 in Motor Tax From State

Ulster will receive $14,701.10 as its share of motor vehicle tax receipts to be distributed to counties in the state, it was announced in Albany today by State Comptroller Arthur Levitt.

Levitt said there is $1,465,466.29 to be sent to the counties of the state and to the City of New York for the counties comprising the city. New York City's share is $453,074.03.

For Three Months

The total is the share of state-collected motor vehicle fees for the three months ending September 30, 1957, which is being returned to the counties in accordance with the state highway law.

The law provides that 25 per cent of the fees collected under the vehicle and traffic law, exclusive of application fees and service charge for special plates, from residents of counties be returned to local government.

Goes for Roads

The money is deposited by counties in the county road funds, from which expenditures for construction and maintenance of county road systems are made. The money paid to the City of New York is to be credited to the city's general fund for construction and maintenance of city streets, highways and parkways. Checks are being mailed to the county fiscal officers and to the treasurer of the City of New York.

Shares going to counties in the vicinity of Ulster are: Columbia, $6,072.75; Delaware, $6,679.08; Dutchess, $19,369.67; Greene, $4,416.29; Orange, $21,857.06 and Sullivan, $8,052.26.

Motorist Killed

SALAMANCA (AP) — James Van Buren, 28, of Salamanca, was killed early today when the automobile he was in left Route 17 just inside the city limits and crashed into a tree.
